Thieves Get Huge Haul In Art

LONDON (Reuters) — Thieves stole 35 paintings valued at nearly $1,200,000 from an art gallery in London's swank Mayfair district during the night.

It was believed to be Britain's biggest art theft.

The paintings included 10 by the 19th-century French painter, J.M.W. Turner.

Police said thieves scaled roofs and forced a fire escape door leading to the O'Hana Art Gallery.

Jacques O'Hana, owner of the gallery that specializes in modern and impressionist works, estimated the value of the stolen paintings at nearly £400,000.

Within hours all air and seaports had been placed on the alert to prevent the thieves from taking the masterpieces out of Britain.

Interpol, the international police organization, also was asked to help.

The insurers offered a reward of £20,000 for the return of the paintings—10 per cent of their insured value.

GOYA STILL MISSING

It was the biggest art theft in England since the theft of a Goya portrait of the Duke of Wellington from the National Gallery last August.

The Goya, valued at £140,000, still is missing.

London has had a wave of art thefts in recent months. A Renoir and two Picassos were among 12 paintings stolen last May. Eleven of the paintings were recovered a week afterward.

The O'Hana Gallery was the scene of a theft four years ago when a Renoir miniature, La Promenade, was removed from its frame and replaced with a colored print of the Madonna and Child.

In the last 12 months the total value of stolen paintings in Europe and the United States has been at least $2,800,000.

The paintings stolen today were part of the gallery's annual summer exhibition.

BEN BELLA RETURNS TO CHEERS OF PEOPLE

ALGIERS (AP) — Dissident deputy premier Ahmed Ben Bella, flanked by high officers of the National Liberation Army, entered western Algeria today and received acclaim from thousands of shouting Moslems.

Ben Bella then set out on what apparently is intended as a procession of popular triumph toward Algiers—to the discomfort of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda with whom he has been at odds.

Ben Bella first entered his birthplace of Marnia, a town of about 12,000 six miles east of the Moroccan border.

Moslem women, in their best tribal dress, banged tambourines and clicked castanets, thousands of spectators shouted and cheered as the caravan of 30 cars sped under banners proclaiming "Long Live Ben Bella."

2 MEN HURT AS FLARES EXPLODE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A case of distress flares exploded on a waterfront dock here today injuring two men.

Taken to hospital with severe burns were forklift operator John T. McNeill and foreman Gunnar Murren.

Police said McNeill was thrown 20 feet by the blast at the Northland Navigation Company wharf.

Fear of a major waterfront fire sent several fire trucks to the scene. The explosion ripped several heavy planks off the dock but no serious fire resulted.

Lloyd to Meet KOD Delegation

REGINA (CP) — Premier Woodrow Lloyd agreed to meet a delegation from the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee today as crowds began streaming into the legislative grounds for a mass protest rally against the controversial medical care insurance plan.

The meeting was scheduled to be held sometime during the afternoon. Meanwhile, the Saskatchewan cabinet also went into session.

Less than an hour before the start of the rally at 2 p.m., CST, highways into the provincial capital were clogged with cars.

On the main Highway 11 from Saskatoon cars were lined up 30 yards apart in a steady stream for more than 40 miles from the city. There was one contingent alone of 163 cars from Prince Albert.

As result of defeat in Bellefleur, Que., riding in federal election June 18, State Secretary Noel Dorion, 38, has resigned from federal cabinet. Other defeated ministers also are winding up work, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today.

RESIGNS

Negroes Jailed For Protest

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — Approximately 35 Negroes were arrested today during a demonstration march toward city hall in protest of the imprisonment of southern integration leader Martin Luther King Jr.

As the arrested Negroes neared the jail in back of the city hall, they broke into the strains of their freedom song, "We Shall Overcome."

King and a fellow minister began 45 days of imprisonment—growing out of earlier demonstrations here—Tuesday and immediately went on a 24-hour fast "to purify their spirits."

Police chief Laurie Pritchett, at the head of a patrol, met the Negroes as they started out of an all-Negro neighborhood and asked them to disperse.

When they quietly refused, he ordered them arrested for blocking traffic and parading without a permit—the same charges that sent King to jail for 45 days Tuesday.

Dr. William Anderson, head of the Albany integration movement, claimed to have 24,000 Negroes ready to go to jail in protest against the rigid segregation practices of this South Georgia industrial city of 60,000.

It said the two sides negotiating at Rabat had agreed not to make any statements which could lead to a worsening of the situation.

The agency was quoting sources which it described as close to the two groups. It gave no details of the agreement.

Its story and the confirmation dispelled pessimism resulting from earlier reports that the Rabat reconciliation talks had broken down.

Chinese Ring Post But Don't Attack

(Times News Services)

NEW DELHI — Communist Chinese troops encircling an Indian border outpost today held their positions but did not attack, Indian officials said.

At the same time, China sent its second protest note in two days, charging India with border intrusions along the disputed frontier.

The New China News Agency said the note was sent Tuesday. India, it charged, has set up four new military strong points in China's Sikkim region and another in Tibet as a prelude to "armed invasion."

The Indian government said it was watching the border situation closely.

Radio CONTACT

Informed sources said the Indian garrison still was in radio contact with army headquarters, but since the Chinese encirclement was complete, it would be difficult to supply the outpost by land.

There are no roads in the area of the outpost. Sources said the Chinese appeared to be using pack animals for transport.

The source declined to disclose how many Indian troops were surrounded but termed the Chinese action "a most serious provocation."

Smoke Bombs For Tourists

WEST BERLIN (Reuters)

East Berlin border guards today threw three smoke-bombs at a group of British tourists who were watching them build a wall on the border of the British sector, district of Staaken, West Berlin police said.

No one in the party of about 30 British tourists was injured, police said.

The tourists quickly returned to their bus and drove off.

Towns Evacuated As Rivers Climb In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Several towns on the northern New South Wales coast, lashed by a cyclone during the last few days, were partly evacuated today while swollen rivers overflowed into the streets.

In Lismore, 100 miles south of the Queensland border on the Richmond River, 250 persons were evacuated as flood waters seven feet deep raced through the business area.

1,500 on Hand With 20 Minutes to Go

By 1:40 p.m. CST, the crowd on the grounds had swollen to more than 1,500.

A growing parade of men, women and children of all ages, including babies pushed in prams, circled the driveway in front of the buildings.

It was a good-natured crowd. They displayed signs proclaiming: "We Object," "The Plan Must Satisfy All," "Suspend Medicare Now."

Government employees were directing traffic away from the front of the building. Snowflakes were set up around the flower beds.

At Davidson, 80 miles south of Saskatoon, nine out of 10 cars on southbound highway carried window stickers claiming support for doctors in their opposition to the government plan.

The Saskatoon Keep-Our-Doctors Committee had originally forecast that a 700-car cavalcade would form for the 167-mile trip to Regina. But the cavalcade failed to form. It appeared that motorists preferred to travel singly instead of in a group.

Committee members handed out pro-doctor stickers and pennants on the outskirts of Saskatoon but not all motorists accepted the material. It was not known how many cars had left Saskatoon.

The cavalcade today is backed by businessmen and city and town councils throughout the province. It seeks suspension of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act that went into operation July 1, resulting in withdrawal of normal medical service by most of the 700 practising doctors in the province.

Want General Election If No Action

The first two cavalcades, numbering 112 and 350 cars respectively, sought by petition to delay the plan until agreement between the government and the doctors could be reached.

This one "demands" suspension of the act, followed by return of the doctors to normal practice. If the government does not suspend the act, the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee seeks dissolution of the legislature and a general election.

Labor groups, which under the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor have supported the government's compulsory medical care plan, are not planning any counter demonstration.

Mr. Lloyd refused to meet the June 15 cavalcade, but did meet the cavalcade two weeks earlier when he urged calmness and asked the doctors to give the medical care plan a trial.

Meanwhile, nine more doctors arrived by air from England Tuesday night to bolster Saskatchewan's medical service.

They were the first of more than 30 United Kingdom doctors expected by Saturday.

They are being brought by the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission.

A group of clergymen representing United, Anglican and Roman Catholic churches, which has met with both government and doctors, said Tuesday they failed to bring the two sides together for a settlement.

NURSES BACK DOCTORS

REGINA (CP) — Nearly 260 Regina nurses Tuesday voted full support of Saskatchewan's doctors in the medical care dispute, and urged the medical care act be suspended.

Two hundred of the nurses at a special meeting signed their names to a petition to this effect.

The registered nurses passed a resolution calling for "wholehearted support" of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, warning of a "complete breakdown in nursing services" if the medical care plan continues.

The resolution said that nursing education is suffering a serious setback. It urged negotiations between doctors and government be resumed "immediately" to stop the exodus of doctors and nurses from the province.

NOISE MAKERS DISTURB ANTI-NOISE CAMPAIGN

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — An anti-noise convention meeting got off to a noisy start Tuesday.

Sixty delegates who gathered to discuss the problems of noise abatement could scarcely hear themselves talk for all the racket. Repairmen outside were breaking up the street with air hammers.

Centennial Flashback...

Arrival of a supply of cement from San Francisco, to be used to construct the tank at the gas house, encourages the belief that the town will be lighted by gas within two months. All the posts for street lamps are at the works and will be placed in position shortly.

The yacht Kelpie, winner of the Queen's Cup at Nanaimo, was offered for sale for $300.

There was great excitement last night when the fire bell was rung very loudly. The engines were rolled out, and crowds turned out of houses, barrooms and hotels, rushing wildly along Government Street to Humboldt. Unfortunately the firemen did not get a chance to show their skill as there was no fire. It is not known who rang the bell.

ENTHUSIASTIC HUG from fiance, Friederike Bernhardt of Munich, was reward for Florida film producer Fred Baldasare today after he emerged from water at Sandwich Bay on England's south coast after swimming under water from Calais, France, across English Channel. (AP Wirephoto.)

AFTER TWO YEARS' EFFORT Channel Swim Made Underwater

DOVER, England (AP) — Fred Baldasare, 38, a Florida film producer, made history of sorts today by completing an English Channel swim from Calais to Sandwich Bay under water.

Bruised and weary, Baldasare trudged ashore on the English side 18 hours and one minute after setting off from France guided by a marker 15 feet beneath the surface. The marker was towed by a motor boat and Baldasare, in a frogman's suit, breathed from air tanks.

The distance from Calais to England is 22 miles as the crow flies, but gales and tides carried Baldasare far off course. It was reckoned he covered about twice that distance.

Baldasare, the first person to swim the channel underwater, said:

"I have given up two years of my life to do this and it has cost me $35,000. My life savings are gone."

"Having achieved my ambition, I now want to get back into film producing. I will do documentaries and also hope to direct a drama about underwater channel swimming."

Baldasare carried lead weights to keep him down. A relay of French frogmen changed his air tanks during the crossing.

Tiny Orbiting Telstar In Triumphant Baptism

(See Page 30)

NEW YORK (AP) — Telstar, the communications satellite, orbited in space today on its pioneering mission to bring the world a new voice, ears and eyes.

In triumphant baptism Tuesday night, it sent television pictures, spanning the Atlantic to France and England. It relayed a telephone call from Maine to Vice-President Johnson in Washington as loud and clear as the best of local calls.

Then for an encore, the versatile Telstar — only a yard wide — simultaneously transmitted news stories at a 1,000-words-a-minute clip, relayed photographs perfectly, and supplied two-way telephone calls with perfect aplomb from a 3,000-mile height in space.

Remarkably clear TV pictures were received in France, and were to be relayed by tape into French homes today.

French TV officials planned to beam a return program to the United States late tonight or early Thursday. French time is five hours ahead of EDT.

A Paris dispatch said this would include a song by Yves Montand, several views of Paris, and a message from Jacques Marete, French communications minister.

In Britain, faint and fleeting pictures were picked up by Telstar received, amplified and retransmitted the program beamed into space from a powerful horn antenna in the little town of Andover, Me. The first telecast via space opened with a view of the American flag rippling in the breeze.

Telstar's first feat was a prodigious demonstration of things to come in a future world-wide satellite communications system to meet mounting demands for telephone, news, business, and TV circuits spanning oceans and continents.

Praising this joint venture of private industry and government — American Telephone and Telegraph Company footed the $4,000,000 cost of building, launching and tracking Telstar — Newton M. Brown, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission remarked:

"Now we have increased opportunity to increase the flow of information among all nations, to surmount the walls of ignorance and prejudice and to use mass communications hopefully to avoid mass destruction."

Telstar was designed and built by the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Only for 12 to 15 minutes on some of its orbits each day will Telstar be in "line of sight" vision between Europe and Maine to permit TV exchange.

But one plan calls for launching a series of 30 to 50 similar repeater satellites, so that one or more always would be in position for relay of TV, telephone calls, photo or story and message transmission.

NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

LONDON (AP) — While applauding the launching of the U.S. communication satellite Telstar, the London Times says today it was not the first direct reception in Britain of television from the United States.

The Times says the first reception was by Douglas Walters (call-sign G5CV) in London Sept. 17, 1930.

Walters received a TV picture at his London home. He said he telegraphed first details of what he had seen to New York and received a cable from the General Electric Company of Schenectady confirming his reception.

He said he learned that the pictures he received was the last of three so-called secret transmissions from New York to a receiving station operated by the German government.

Walters said no picture was seen in Germany—despite the use of elaborate aerials.

His reception was at the time widely reported by the British press.

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Sign we like, in the window of the Jubilee Coffee Shop. Our coffee, your dime, get along fine.

The CPR's Princesses on the Victoria-Seattle run are due for a bit of publicity via a "queen."

She's Mrs. Hollie Fifer, 934 Hilgard Avenue, Los Angeles, who acquired her crown and a trail of gifts by becoming "Queen for a Day" on the TV program of that name.

She won the honor on the June 29 program. As the last in her long list of prizes, Mrs. Fifer was awarded a trip by Princess steamer from Seattle to Victoria. She and her husband will visit here next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Her gifts included furniture, appliances, books, and a complete wardrobe—but she wasn't the only one to benefit. At her request, the sponsors of the show also presented an air-conditioner to the Los Angeles Braille Institute for the Blind, where she is employed.

Since the Times ran a story about Bob Hope coming here (yes, it's NEXT Monday), Ron Worley has been swamped with calls from Hopefuls.

He's been offered a boat for the Hopes to go fishing, a private plane, a car, and free candy for the Hope family from a local merchant.

Ron took a trip to Salt Spring Island last weekend with his boss, Premier Bennett. It was to show off the lot he bought for the premier this spring. Ron bought it, then sold it to the chief sight unseen; fortunately it was just what he wanted. "But I kept the cheque in my pocket just in case," said Ron.

If you have an old copy of "Father, Dear Father, Come Home With Me Now," you're just the person the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. is looking for.

To assist in research work, the foundation wants books, pamphlets, and campaign leaflets of the anti-alcohol and temperance movements in Canada and the U.S. For instance, works of Frances E. Willard and books such as "The Temperance Entertainer" and "Temperance Reader" are sought.

So, if you have any anti-thirst literature lying around, ship it off to the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., 1960 Broadway. Include your name and address so acknowledgment can be made. Cheers!

Former Mayor Percy Scurrah is wearing in his coat lapel a new pin inscribed "Past President, Mayors of Canada" and bearing an inset map of Canada in green enamel. There's only one thing wrong with the map. No Vancouver Island!

A couple of sightseers from California, armed with formidable-looking movie cameras and determined expressions, approached this reporter on Tuesday afternoon, requiring directions to "Butcher's Garden." Having been given the lowdown on Butcher's Garden, their eyebrows lifted as they walked off, muttering: "and we thought they were made by the meat-cutters' union!"

New Rotary president Frank Norton is getting a severe indoctrination in the matter of visiting brass. Next Thursday he hosts the immediate past president of Rotary International, Joe Abbey. A newspaper circulator, Abbey is bringing with him to Victoria 18 carrier boys who won a trip to the Seattle World's Fair.

Yesterday, Norton received word that the current R.I. president will be in town Aug. 13 and Frank is busily trying to round up an all-island meeting. This is the first Asian president of Rotary, Nitish Laharry. He's from India, where he was a top film distributor.

Never say die... native Victorian Harold Wilson, 4215 Cedar Hill Road, has had a "bug" about the old home town's 100th year festivities. He thinks they should have been pushed more, and early in the year went to see Mayor Wilson with his thoughts.

Why not a car bumper card to be fixed to as many tourist cars as possible, as well as local autos, was one of his suggestions.

He has made regular calls to the Centennial office over the months, nagging the organizers for such a card. And the other day they came through.

Into the Times' office rushed Wilson with a bright red-lettered, black background, celebrations booster he had just received on his latest call to the Centennial headquarters. "Please tell everyone about it," he pleaded. "It's still not too late to get behind the birthday effort."

$40,000 B.C. Grant Asked To Help Build Gorge Bridge

Saanich and Esquimalt will ask the B.C. government to share the cost of constructing a new and enlarged $80,000 bridge across the Gorge at Tillicum Road.

Representatives of both councils discussed the need for a new span at a Saanich public works committee meeting Tuesday.

The department of highways will be asked to contribute $40,000 towards the project.

The remaining $40,000 would be shared equally by the two municipalities.

Councils will also request the preparation of a new bridge design to cope with future traffic needs.

The municipalities want construction to start next year.

Two years ago Saanich and Esquimalt agreed to improve the bridge at a cost of $20,000. But this figure has now been increased to $80,000 because the present design is inadequate to handle steadily increasing traffic.

U.S. Closes Canadian Radar Units

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States defence department said today that during the last 12 months it closed down nine U.S. radar stations in Canada, including three major stations in the Canadian north and six so-called gap fillers forming part of the Distant Early Warning radar system.

Normally, the gap fillers are described as "unmanned," but the department said five of the six fillers were actually "air stations" with about 26 men at each station.

The Canadian installations, costing more than $20,000,000, were closed because of extension of the D.E.W. radar line both west and east, producing some overlapping in this radar fence. The affected Canadian stations were along the east coast, from the Arctic down to Newfoundland.

Last year, the D.E.W. line was extended east to Greenland and northwest to the Aleutian Islands.

Talks Continue With Plumbers, Carpenters

Talks aimed at staving off a strike in the B.C. construction industry this summer lasted until late Tuesday and continued again today in Vancouver without sign of settlement.

Carpenters' and plumbers' unions outside of Greater Victoria have voted to strike in support of 1962-63 contract demands.

In last-minute efforts to prevent a walkout which would seriously hamper an otherwise prosperous construction season, both unions agreed to further bargaining discussions suggested by conciliation officers.

Greater Victoria union members are not affected in the negotiations having settled their own contracts for this year and next with local contractors.

Only if a strike is called could workmen on certain jobs being done here by Vancouver contractors be affected.

Churchill Makes 'Good Progress'

LONDON (AP)—Despite complications, Sir Winston Churchill apparently is making such good progress that his doctors decided today to skip further medical bulletins until Friday.

An afternoon bulletin said Churchill is "making satisfactory progress and there is nothing further to report." Then the doctors disclosed that there will be no more bulletins until Friday.

Churchill this morning checked the racing news in London papers after watching a movie from his hospital bed Tuesday night.

The 87-year-old wartime prime minister, whose recovery from a thigh bone fracture has been complicated by a blood clot in the leg, spent a comfortable night, Middlesex Hospital officials said.

Hospital officials said Churchill was especially interested in the morning newspapers because his horse Novitate was to run at Salisbury later in the day.

The blood clot condition, or thrombosis, was disclosed for the first time in Tuesday's medical bulletin and indicated that if had been present with the phlebitis he has been suffering since Saturday. Phlebitis is a more general term covering inflammation of a vein.

FIVE CHILDREN DROWN AT RESORT BEACH

'Like Fishermen Pulling Fish Out of the Water'

LONG POINT BEACH, Ont. (CP)—Jayne Patricia Williams, 11, ran over to two passing friends Tuesday to give them her ring so that it would not get wet.

She went back to the water's edge at this Lake Erie beach, where her brother and sister and two other Hamilton children were playing.

About an hour later all five children were found drowned. They were caught 20 yards from shore by a strong undertow, which develops in strong winds. They were playing alone and no one witnessed the accident.

Dead are Jayne, her sister Catherine, 8, and brother Harold Thomas, 9, Robert Ellis, 9, and Kenneth Walchuck, 10.

Coroner Dr. D. A. Archibald said there has been no decision on an inquest.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Williams brought their three children on Saturday to this vacationing spot, on a narrow peninsula about 75 miles southwest of Hamilton, for a week-long holiday. With the children was their cousin, Kenneth Walchuck. Robert, a friend, joined them Tuesday.

The children went to the beach 300 yards from the Williams' cottage, at about 3 p.m.

awanda, N.Y., camping in the area with her husband and eight children, spotted the first body about 3:30 p.m.

"It was the most unbelievable thing I ever saw," she said.

Swimmers formed a human chain after she gave the alarm. "It was like fishermen pulling fish out of the water as the human chain moved slowly through the water," she said.

"But they weren't fish. They were little boys and girls and I felt like sobbing as I hugged my own small children."

"I had been wading in shallow water close to shore when I spotted him farther out. He seemed like a small boy to be swimming so far out and with his head down in the water, too."

"Then I realized that he couldn't hold his breath that long and wasn't moving. A chill ran down my spine."

Two doctors, two nurses, firemen, police and vacationers tried for more than two hours to revive the children.

'Up to Doctors If I Can Help'

By DAVID OANGLA

LONDON (CP) — Lord Taylor, the doctor-peer asked by the Saskatchewan government to lend assistance in the province's dispute over compulsory medical care, said Tuesday night that whether he can be of help depends on Saskatchewan's doctors.

UBC PROFS URGE DOCTORS TO END STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty-five University of British Columbia professors have signed a letter urging Saskatchewan doctors to call off their boycott of the provincial government's medicare plan.

The letter, signed by some of UBC's top professors, said the doctors have made their point by refusing to work under the scheme. They should return to practice now and try to settle their differences with the government through negotiation.

The letter was to be mailed to the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons Tuesday night. It said that some of the professors who signed support the objection of doctors to the Saskatchewan Medicare Act but they believe the doctors should have staged a boycott to back up the objections.

Drug Stores Report Sales Drop Sharply

REGINA (CP) — Prescription sales of drugs in Regina have dropped approximately 50 to 75 per cent since July 1, a number of druggists and pharmacists said during a spot check Monday and Tuesday.

Pashua Drugs said it has experienced a 50 per cent drop, although it has received a number of prescriptions issued by emergency medical service doctors at city hospitals. Pinder's Drug estimated a 50 to 75 per cent drop in prescription drugs and said it expected a further decrease. Medical Arts Pharmacy Limited, primarily a prescription centre, reported that it was doing only 15 to 20 per cent of its former business. River Heights Pharmacy estimated its drop in prescription sales at 95 per cent.

Mediation In Vienna Dispute

VIENNA (UPI) — The government decided Tuesday to mediate a three-month wage dispute between Vienna doctors and the socialized state health insurance company in the wake of a 24-hour strike Monday by the nation's physicians.

The council of ministers said in a communique after a four-meeting that Minister of Education Heinrich Drimmel and Social Welfare Minister Anton Proksch had been assigned to reopen deadlocked negotiations.

The communique noted that the government has no legal right to halt the strike. The decision followed a one-day warning walkout by 11,000 of Austria's 13,700 doctors, which left the country's seven million population with only emergency service.

Princess Killed

TECKENBURG, West Germany (AP) — Princess Elina of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen was killed in a plane crash near here Saturday along with the pilot, police reported Sunday.

TOURISTS NOT SCARED BY STRIKE

REGINA (CP) — In spite of the medical care controversy, tourists are still coming to Saskatchewan, perhaps in even greater numbers than during last year's record tourist season. Representatives of government, the provincial motor club and Regina Chamber of Commerce say there has been no slackening of the influx of visitors.

Medicare War Threatening Long Hatreds

REGINA (CP) — Grant Armstrong, Regina lawyer, said Tuesday if "warring factions" in the current medical care dispute in Saskatchewan continue on their present course, it will "engender hatred for generations to come."

Mr. Armstrong, one of the organizers of a group called "Save Our Saskatchewan," said at a press conference that a "disastrous situation is resulting right now from discord in the community."

When the dispute between the doctors and the government continued, he said, people were losing confidence in the province and themselves.

APPEAL TO BOTH

Mr. Armstrong said his group hopes to appeal to both sides through members of the legislature and individual doctors to return to conditions which existed June 30, before the Medical Care Act came into operation.

He said operation of the act should be suspended, doctors should resume normal practice and negotiations could then be carried out "for a reasonable and specified" time.

Mr. Armstrong said the Save Our Saskatchewan organization wishes to remain independent of other volunteer groups formed to resolve the medical care controversy.

LIMIT STATEMENTS

If the doctors and government got together in good faith, his group would urge that only the cabinet and the College of Physicians and Surgeons issue statements and that other types of "propaganda, statements and advertisements" cease.

The SOS backed the Keep Our Doctors' committee efforts to retain Saskatchewan doctors within the province, but as an organization it was not associated with a KOD-sponsored protest rally scheduled here Wednesday at the legislative grounds.

Mr. Armstrong said he did not think the demonstration would interfere with mediation efforts by church leaders. He "desperately" hoped there would be no disorder or hints of disorder.

Takes Off Inches Around Her Waist

"I have found the Naran Plan to be an effective reducing method. It has helped me to lose weight in the right places, I have taken inches off around my waist. Since losing this weight I feel younger than I have in years." — Mrs. Veronique, Masterville, P.Q.

Try this home recipe reducing plan and find an easy way to lose unsightly pounds without starving or exercising. The Naran Plan is available at all drug stores.

'Could Lead to Anarchy'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said Tuesday that doctors' defiance of Saskatchewan medicare legislation could lead ultimately to anarchy. He told a press conference: "When a law is duly passed by a legislature it's a very serious thing for doctors to withdraw their services. "Ultimately we could have a state of anarchy." At the same time, the provincial party chief said, he could see errors on both sides more slowly.

Mr. Bennett's Harvest

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA government is now reaping the harvest sown in the field of frenzied finance.

When Premier Bennett floated bonds of more than a billion dollars, denying that they represented any debt, he made certain assumptions doubtful at the time and now invalid. All his plans were based on current interest rates and those rates have been drastically increased by the similar policies and huge borrowings of the federal government.

In consequence, Mr. Bennett has been compelled overnight to raise his own interest rates. If he had not raised them on his parity bonds, the holders would have demanded cash which he could not raise in order to buy federal bonds with a higher yield.

Mr. Bennett also has been forced to pay higher interest for money he borrowed on short term from the bank. Like Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Bennett is in disorderly retreat from all his earlier assumptions.

No doubt Mr. Bennett will say that this doesn't matter in the least. Though the cost of his borrowings has been raised by at least a million a year, the taxpayers need not worry because they will not pay the bill, having no debt.

If the borrowings of the government's various agencies are not debt why has Mr. Bennett rushed in to alter their contracts and thus preserve the credit of the government? Of course the taxpayers, as consumers of electricity, toll payers on provincial bridges and users of government ferries, will pay all the increased interest charges. They cannot be escaped by Mr. Bennett's bizarre bookkeeping.

He will say, however, that all this is the fault of the federal government. Mainly it is. The federal government's perpetual deficits and gigantic borrowings have pushed interest rates upward and finally have so depleted the nation's credit that it is driven for rescue to the British and American governments and the International Monetary Fund.

But the federal government was not alone in this folly. On a per capita basis it is doubtful, indeed, that any government in North America has borrowed so much as the government of British Columbia under Mr. Bennett's management and these borrowings contributed both to high interest rates and the decline of the nation's credit.

The money markets and the investors, both foreign and Canadian, pay no attention to Mr. Bennett's ingenious bookkeeping arrangements. So far as they are concerned, any borrowing by any Canadian government, whether it be direct or indirect, represents debt and all our governments collectively have pushed debt beyond the level of safety.

Finally, Mr. Bennett will say that all these troubles could have been avoided if a Social Credit government had ruled in Ottawa, that they will be cured as soon as such a government comes to office.

This excuse is as deceptive as Mr. Bennett's financial assumptions. The Social Credit Party, speaking through Mr. Cadotte, the man who really controls it in Parliament, proposes to increase all governmental expenditures on a vast scale. He must mean one of three things—further borrowings, sharp tax increases or a wild inflation of the currency which would be taxation in the worst and unfair form.

That is the policy supported by Mr. Bennett when he supports Mr. Cadotte and the Quebec tail now wagging the Social Credit dog.

The Neighbors' Election

OUR AMERICAN NEIGHBORS are now preparing to repeat Canada's recent experience of a general election, though not, one hopes, with the same indecisive results. All the American House of Representatives and a third of the Senate are on their way to the November polls.

For some weeks yet the existing legislators will be held in Washington by their Congressional duties but as soon as possible they will adjourn and plunge into the more congenial work of a political campaign.

Meanwhile the Republican opposition, free of responsibility for government, has launched its effort to repair some of the damage suffered in the election of 1960. The Presidency, of course, is not at stake this year but if they could make large gains in the legislature the Republicans would lay the groundwork for their presidential campaign two years hence.

For this purpose they recently invoked the impressive father image of General Eisenhower who, in his retirement, seems to enjoy a political sally now and then. Officially opening the Republican campaign with a trenchant speech, General Eisenhower set the tone for his active friends.

They will indict the Kennedy administration mainly for its alleged failure to stimulate economic growth, as promised two years ago, for hostility to private enterprise, for continuing unemployment.

Much more will be heard of all this from now on as the President faces his first electoral test since he came to the White House. The test apparently will be sharp; the future membership of the House of Representatives doubtful. But that is the business of the American people. We have plenty of our own north of the border just now.

Africans and the American Negro

MR. CLARKE M. THOMAS, AN American who recently travelled extensively in West Africa, has conducted a personal and quiet investigation there of a unique situation.

He wanted to know how Africans, particularly those of the new nations, responded to the United States Negro who went to that continent to serve in American aid programs.

The responses to his questioning were widely varied. They ranged from an expression of appreciation for work done by the competent American Negro—who, incidentally, claims loyalty and honest effort from many of the American white people who serve under him—to the comment of a young Ghanaian official who told him: "Well, really you must see that we look down on any one who has been a slave."

The latter point of view has been met head-on by one American Negro who said he preferred the clear conscience of knowing that his forefathers did not sell fellow Africans into slavery.

On the whole, Mr. Thomas found that there is usually an affinity between American Negroes and Africans. He also found that white Americans quickly catch the affection of the Africans if they do a good job and have a capacity for friendship and tact.

Finally Mr. Thomas reaches a sound conclusion. It is that, skin color is less important in this situation than the type of person involved. It depends on the man himself, be he white or Negro.

The survey, unofficial as it was, illustrates an important point that should not be lost on critics of the United States who seize every opportunity to exploit color incidents. Discrimination is not necessarily a matter of pigmentation. White people practise no monopoly in its exercise, and human beings are respected, liked and honored for what they are when they have the characteristics that merit respect and affection.

Above the Law

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA section of the Canadian Bar Association is quite right in demanding the end of the existing Crown fiat system. Under the present law no citizen aggrieved by the provincial government can sue it without the permission of the attorney-general. He can refuse fiat as he pleases, and often does.

This anachronism and relic of a feudal age has long since disappeared in Britain. In 1953 the Canadian government abandoned it and made itself subject to suit like any private citizen. The Crown's old immunity has also disappeared in Manitoba, New Brunwick, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Only five provinces, British Columbia among them, maintain an obsolete barrier against the natural rights of the citizen and place attorneys-general like Mr. Bonner above the reach of the law.

No wonder the lawyers of this province are protesting, but the only protest that will count with the provincial government must come from the ordinary citizens who hold the final weapon of the franchise. And the ordinary citizen should be the first man to protest because he is the man most likely to be hurt by the government and prevented from bringing it to court.

"Of course I'll help you—not before September, though."

No One Can Forecast the Wreckage

THE invention of a "time machine" would cause no surprise in South Africa. For here such a machine already exists, working in reverse carrying one away from the mid-Twentieth Century.

This gloomy picture is not the nightmare of a Western liberal agnostic at the South African repression, but that of the Afrikaner himself, fighting a rear-guard action against forces which he knows must ultimately overwhelm him.

Smell of Violence

How deeply the gloom affects the man-in-the-street is difficult to say. In the sun-filled daytime, perhaps very little. But at night the smell of violence drifts in from the veldt. It is manifest in Johannesburg, where the streets are deserted by 8 p.m. and 100,000 people own licensed firearms. Or in downtown Port Elizabeth, where night gangs slip out to daub the grey railway bridges with "Hang Vorster!" (the minister of justice) and "Death to the Saboteur Bill."

This, then, is the psychological background of the Saboteur Bill: a measure which lays down a possible death penalty for almost any act of political defiance the government cares to name.

It is not so much aimed at sabotage itself. (The 22 bomb explosions which have occurred in Durban, Port Elizabeth and Johannesburg in recent months have in most cases been amateur and ineffective.) Rather does it aim to stop all reminders that beneath the crust of apartheid there are mounting pressures which must one day explode. When and where this explosion will occur is the chief topic of political conversation in South Africa.

In 10 Years

Those who 12 months ago were prepared to believe that it could come "any day" are now thinking in terms of anything up to 10 years, while others who ranged their sights at about 20 years are now prepared to halve that.

Several external factors may upset this inevitably rough calculation. For example, Southwest Africa may be freed from South Africa's mandate or Mozambique may revolt against Portugal, each providing South Africa with an unfriendly frontier. In the other direction, South Africa may try to annex the British protectorates of Basutoland, Swaziland and Bechuanaland.

which offer bases for revolutionary activity.

But subject to such hazards, it strikes the observer that the course of events in South Africa will be determined by the pace at which Africans are able to organize themselves (as they certainly intend) for the violent struggle ahead.

There is a new mood today among South African Africans, and the Saboteur Bill is the cause. By silencing such non-violent leaders as Chief Albert Lutuli, the former head of the banned African National Congress, the bill has removed the brake on violent policies. And by closing the last door to non-violent protest, such as strikes, it has probably caused even Lutuli to reconsider the usefulness of the non-violent approach.

The future now lies with a new generation of militant leaders like Nelson Mandela, the "rising star" of Congress, who is also believed to be head of the Zulu sabotage group called The Spear of the Nation. Mandela is abroad at present. He flits across frontiers, addresses midnight meetings, has even visited Lutuli near Durban—all under the noses of the police. He is 37 years old, brave and mature, and has a devoted following.

'Deep Underground'

It is no longer possible for the banned A.N.C. to hold half-open meetings and keep contact with its adherents. Nor are there any longer hopes, which used to be encouraged by rival Pan-African Congress, of armed intervention by African Powers in the North.

Instead, there are thoughts of a carefully planned operation whose preparation alone may take several years. There is tentative acceptance of a new need for unity, security and discipline; of training a "deep underground" and waging a "war of nerves" to wreck the economy and upset the government's monolithic hold.

Ask how this can be achieved and the most hopeful answer is that the British and foreign financial interests who control about 85 per cent of the republic's capital will be forced to break the government and accept a new order based on racial equality.

The greatest danger for the South African "freedom movement" is that sometime in the next two or three years a haphazard incident of the Sharpeville type may result in an unplanned, disorganized revolt. Such a revolt could probably be suppressed with terrible casualties, in a matter of days. It could dissipate the spirit of resistance for several years to come.

To realize their objective, the African leaders must therefore control their ambitions and not attempt to "capitalize" on a Sharpeville before they are ready. How far they can judge this moment depends largely on the degree of co-operation between Africans and elements of other races, Europeans and Indians, who are in equally desperate opposition to Prime Minister Hendrick Verwoerd.

European Co-operation

European co-operation at present continues to come largely from the Liberals, a party whose non-violent record is seen at its bravest and most responsible in such figures as Alan Paton, author of the best-selling novel Cry, the Beloved Country, which exposed the South African tragedy to millions of people abroad.

Indian co-operation is provided by the Indian Congress movement, whose leader, Dr. G. M. Naicker, has long echoed Chief Lutuli's pleas against bloodshed.

For both these groups the Saboteur Bill presents a cruel predicament. They have fought against violence from the beginning, but now they begin to see that it cannot be avoided. Some of their members will henceforth keep silent. Others may choose to associate themselves with violence, if only in hope of preventing the ultimate explosion from becoming a racial massacre instead of a mere insurrection against the government.

Communists

A third source of support for the African liberation movement is the Congress of Democrats—a small, tightly organized, proscribed body of Europeans, many of whose members are "listed" Communists. If it is asked whether they are truly Communists, the answer in many cases, is Yes.

Out of the polarization of 3,000,000 whites on one side and 11,000,000 Africans on the other, South Africa is moving towards its crisis. The night will be a long one, and nobody can forecast what wreckage may be found by the dawn.

(London Observer Service)

As Our Readers See It

Ever-Increasing Burden

How much longer can Canadians endure the ever increasing burden of taxes, local, provincial and Dominion?

Mr. Diefenbaker fulminated against the greed of private businesses raising prices, but what about the B.C. government. With the highest prices in Canada already for one of the civilized amenities which help poor Joe Doakes to carry his burden, it raised imported liquor three times higher than was necessary to meet the rise in the tariff. Hitler demanded Czechoslovakia but graciously settled for the Sudetenland. Mr. Bonner will graciously reduce his exorbitant and uncalled for increase, but you may be quite sure it will not be reduced to exactly the necessary amount to take care of the increased tariff and depreciation of the dollar. The Financial Post says a standard bottle of Scotch whiskey should cost 40c more.

You may be quite sure a nice extra profit will be there for his department not to mention the extra 5 per cent sales tax British Columbia will reap. Mr. Bonner says he is in favor of prohibition (for the people) and also that no one will say that drinking does the ner makes good and sure that B.C. will benefit at the expense of one sector of the population. He is quite willing to squeeze the last cent of profit from his evil traffic. It seems absolutely hypocritical to me. An honest believer would give away the profits of sin rather than take every opportunity to increase them.

And, while I am on the subject why has the City of Victoria charged us a full year's taxes for 10 months. Taxes are now paid on July 31st, a clear loss to the citizens of two months taxes. Why isn't the tax collected on December 31st, the end of the year instead of six months in advance. The power to tax is the power to destroy. Sweden, France, Great Britain and other countries have lowered their taxes. The U.S.A. is now going to reduce taxes. This is not done in charity, but in recognition of the fact that taxes were crushing the life and initiative out of the people.

I understand the necessity of the means presently being taken to protect the Canadian dollar, but why was this not done three years ago on the advice of the man who said it must be done and that it could be done without harm to our standard of living, namely Mr. Coyne? Now the brakes have been slammed on and we are all going through the windshield. I am angry and disgusted and so I am sure are thousands of other voters.

'The Only Answer'

So Adam and Eve are left out of a "newly published scientific version of the Bible, because the whole idea of Adam and Eve won't fit in with evolution."

What next, I wonder. Jesus Christ will not "fit in with evolution" either, so this "scientist" should eliminate Him too. If man evolved he has no need of a Redeemer.

The Bible is the Word of God; it is about time we stopped tampering with it, and got down to studying it for what it contains—the only answer to all our problems.

LIMA

Disillusioned Democracy

By BARRY LANDO

(Mr. Lando is a young British Columbian, an honors graduate of Harvard, who is making a specialty of Latin-American affairs.)

ENCIRCLED by hundreds of thousands of clay and adobe hovels, the white city of Lima is filled with rumors of fraud, impending military coups, and political intrigue. A month has passed since one and a half million Peruvians cast their ballots in the June 10th presidential elections, yet the results are still hotly disputed, and there is a mounting impatience with the Democratic process.

The elections were fought not around specific issues, but rather on a "feeling" that one candidate was more liberal, anti-Communist, or conservative than another. The campaign was a battle of personalities and images. The final count gives Aprista leader, Haya de la Torre, a slight margin over Belaunde Terry, architect turned politician. Although traditionally Peru's radical party, the Apristas lost much support because of their alliance with the outgoing conservative Prado government. On the other hand, Belaunde Terry presented a more dynamic and progressive figure to many former Aprista members.

Decision July 28

Since neither candidate has received the necessary one-third of the vote to win the election, the results will be left to the newly elected Congress which meets July 28. This period of waiting means for Peru almost seven weeks of political and economic stagnation.

Thousands of government jobs, from school teachers to cabinet ministers, depend on the outcome. Government projects have been slowed to a crawl, and private investors are holding back cautiously to await the results.

Were it not for the gravity of the situation the election aftermath would equal any Gilbert and Sullivan comedy. As official election counts slowly trickled in from all parts of the rugged country, each candidate continued publicly to proclaim his own victory, and unofficial counts varied with each party newspaper. The partisan press is still filled with accusations and counter charges of fraud and violence at the electoral tables, while the official supervising the national vote receives continuous police protection from numerous assassination threats.

Alliance Necessary

Since some sort of alliance will be necessary in order for any candidate to gain a congressional majority, Lima's bars and restaurants abound with rumors of secret political dealings. On the same day Haya de la Torre was linked with both Belaunde and with the third place candidate, ex-President Odría.

In back of all lurks the military who have been traditionally opponents of Haya de la Torre and the Aprista party. Despite weeks of attempted pre-election negotiations between the army and Apristas, many in Lima still feel that the military will intervene to prevent Haya's election. The threat of a military coup may have a decisive effect on the Peruvian Congress's choice for the presidency.

Newspapers hostile to the Apristas are doing their best to play upon the army's distrust of de la Torre by publishing speeches he made more than a decade ago in which he violently attacked the Peruvian army as a reactionary institution. Meanwhile the Aprista press publishes full page advertisements maintaining the honesty of the elections and virtually pleading with the army not to intervene.

'Lies and False Pretences'

The weeks of political machinations and intrigue have only served to weaken the already shaky democratic tradition of Peru. Many Peruvians, totally disgusted with the past, abstained from voting and shrug their shoulders at talk of politics: "Politics is nothing but lies and false pretences. It is a dirty business. I want none of it." Others voted with frank cynicism. As one worker in Lima, who voted for ex-President Odría, put it, "Sure I know he robbed millions when he was president, but at least I can see the buildings and stadium he constructed!" A similar outlook was expressed by a restaurant waiter who voted for Belaunde Terry "because he is the least worst of the three."

Many views are more extreme. After a lengthy political discussion, a construction worker suddenly burst out, "We Peruvians are cowards! We should have done away with this whole mess long ago!" The most violent statements came from the habitually radical University of San Marcos, where Richard Nixon was stoned in 1958. In the university's flower-studded courtyard a group of students solemnly affirmed that these would be "the last elections with a president and congress and all that" that Peru would ever experience.

Symptoms

Although these statements are exceptions to the average comments of partisanship or indifference, they are symptoms of a growing disillusionment with the political process. The political faction will continue to mount as long as basic economic and social reforms are delayed, and as long as personal feuds and military pressure dominate Peru's political scene.

Another Year or Two in School

A FRIEND of mine who teaches in a high school Up-Island has been telling me about the dropout problem in his locality. "Our community," he explained, "lives on the forest industries. They provide the main occupations to which the youngsters in school are exposed. Fathers and elder brothers work in the woods or the mills. They talk logging and mill work at home. Kids often grow up thinking of this particular world of trees, lumber and pulp as the obvious field in which they're going to make their lives and their living."

Stott

"There are exceptions, of course. But this is the general pattern. Recognize this background and then figure the effect it has on the husky boy of 16, 17 or 18 who hasn't been distinguishing himself in high school. He looks ahead to working in the woods and pulling down big money."

"He has every reason to believe he can get a junior job and then work up to falling and bucking—which can earn him $20, $30, even $50 a day if conditions are right. His inclination is to quit school and start out after the big cheques available to competent men in that field. He wants to know what good it will do him to keep on with his studies."

"Our job, as I see it, is to encourage him to finish high school at least. He'll need all the education he can assimilate. And I think there's a way of helping him to balance off the value of staying in school now against the returns of quick and big money as a faller and bucker in the woods."

"First of all, I tell him employees want to know if a person looking for work has finished high school. They want to know that so they can get an idea of a boy's ability to stick to a job until he has given it all he's got."

"Then, in a friendly sort of way, we get around to discussing family matters if his father has been working in the woods and went into them without very much education. In a round-about fashion we reach a point where he tells me about the big money his father used to make when he was younger and stronger and had the strength and energy to make a good income on piece-work."

"Usually the youth can remember the later years in that work, when the old man came home after his day's work so tired he just managed to eat and fall into bed to rest for the next day's effort. Then, it generally develops, the job got too tough for him. He needed lighter work. Some kind of employment less demanding on his energies was found for him, but it didn't claim quite the same high rate of pay."

"You suggest that this is a familiar experience—a young man with lots of vigor making big money, growing older, passing his physical peak, finding the day's work a little too much and gradually moving to the sidelines in a job made for him but not particularly rewarding."

"That usually sets the youngster thinking. He sees the future in slightly broader perspective. He looks beyond the big money of the hard physical job to the time when failing capabilities leave an uneducated man with pretty limited resources to get something else that pays well."

"It occurs to him that it might be worth while staying a little longer in school, building up a few reserves in his head for the day when the brawn begins to play out."

"And we try to point out to him that if he goes into the woods, he'll probably be working directly or indirectly for one of the big outfits, even if he's contracting. In the big outfits there's room for promotion for the employee who not only can handle his job and has some mental ability, but who is also equipped with more than the minimum in education."

"We've had a few boys stay in school longer when that picture has been drawn for them. It doesn't always work, but it's better than just wishing them luck when they are toying with the idea of quitting to get into the transitory big money."

And Now for a Pleasant Chore

By the end of this week, the spikes of lavender flowers should be ready to cut and be dried.

I never do this pleasant little chore without thinking of the lady who once told me she had not realized lavender had flowers—she had lived in cities all her life, had never seen lavender growing until coming to Victoria and had thought of lavender as, well—just lavender, the little dried-up knobs of something which smelled pleasantly.

Lavender has flowers which make a pretty display, contrasting their color nicely with grey leaves.

Hilda

If the deep purple, and the pale pink varieties are also grown a rather delightful little bed of fragrance can be enjoyed.

For drying purposes, the spikes, or stems, are cut as soon as the lowest blossoms on the spikes are open. If left until all are open, the fragrance of the dried product is much reduced.

The best time for cutting is the same as for the culinary herbs—just around noon, on a sunny day. This ensures full fragrance, and also quick drying without the buds rotting from dampness.

Use either sharp scissors, or sharp secateurs for the job and if there is much to be cut divide the operation into two or more days. The hands may easily become cramped with, holding the cutters at exactly the same angle for a long period.

After cutting, the stems are laid out thinly either on clean paper or fine-mesh wire, and allowed to dry thoroughly in a warm, airy room or shed. The sun should not shine directly on it.

According to one's own preference, the spikes can either be kept intact, or the buds stripped from the stems. The stripped lavender can be put into little bags of porous material (organdy used to be the thing) and sent to the friends and relatives "back east" to make them wish they too lived where the lavender grows.

BOTH BELIEVE WAR INEVITABLE

Stalinists, Birchers Linked

MONTREAL (CP)—Pessimists peering over the shoulders of the American Premier Khrushchev represent a danger to peace, American columnist Drew Pearson said Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson, addressing the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association summer meeting here, identified these elements as the extreme right wing in United States politics, German Chancellor Adenauer, French President de Gaulle, the Stalinists led by former Soviet foreign minister Molotov and the Communist Chinese.

The Stalinists and the American right have in common the belief that war is inevitable between the West and the Communist world, he said. The rightists argued that capitalism can survive only through war with Russia, thus displaying a complete lack of faith in the American Premier.

Mr. Pearson said there are encouraging signs for world peace—the amicable meeting of De Gaulle and Adenauer, the election victory for pro-Western groups in Japan, Italy's economic recovery from the verge of prostration and communism, achievement of neutrality for Laos, and the fact that critical comments of the Russian system by an American had been distributed throughout Russia by the official news agency Tass.

TRUMAN RIGHT

He suggested that the view of former president Truman that the world is headed for a prolonged period of tough but peaceful competition with Russia is the correct one. "Russia is not like the walls of Jericho," he said. "It's not going to come tumbling down."

Senator Barry Goldwater, Mr. Pearson, who spent two days with Mr. Khrushchev last summer, offered the Russian leader's opinions on a number of world figures.

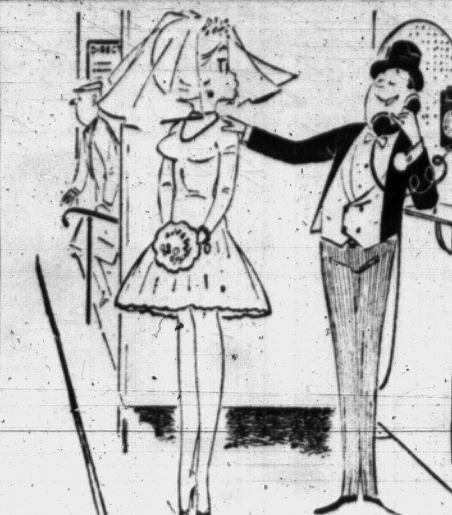

Mr. Molotov—"He's as dumb as this wood," rapping the desk with his hand. Mr. Khrushchev later changed the remark for quotation to "a man of no flexibility."

Former president Eisenhower is a man sincerely desiring peace but one who did not run his own administration.

Former vice-president Nixon "wouldn't trust him around a corner."

President Kennedy—a man you could disagree with but one you can respect.

MANY PROBLEMS

Anti-Missile Claim Doubted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Informed U.S. officials believe the Russians still are a long way from developing a complete anti-missile system.

They are not disputing that the Russians may have developed an anti-missile rocket, as Soviet Premier Khrushchev claimed Tuesday. But they stress that development of such a rocket is only part—and not the most difficult part—of the problem of fashioning a complete anti-missile system, with its associated radar and other highly sensitive and complex gear.

One of the biggest problems—as the United States has found in its work with the Nike Zeus anti-missile system—is to perfect radar that can discriminate between oncoming warheads and decoys sent out by an enemy to confuse and foil the defences.

One official familiar with intelligence reports said the Russians have been installing large numbers of fairly powerful radar units, but that this radar is believed able to reach no higher than perhaps 100,000 feet and apparently is part of defences against manned bombers.

NO INFORMATION

He said there is no information here to indicate the Russians have developed an operational anti-missile warhead, as distinguished from a research and test model.

It is known that the Russians last September exploded high above earth a nuclear test device that had some of the characteristics of an anti-missile weapon.

President Kennedy, in a broadcast four months ago, said the Russians appeared to be seeking information on the effects of nuclear blasts on radar and communications.

OSLO, Norway (Reuters)—U Thant, acting UN secretary-general, said here today he considered all nuclear tests undesirable, but the American high altitude test over the Pacific was more undesirable than others.

More 'Ifs' and 'Buts' Than Ever

By GORDON BELL

Economic forecasters notoriously are not given to making definite statements about the future.

And with the present confused political and economic situation in Canada, the utterances of the "things will be better if they do not get worse" school are even more hedged about with "ifs" and "buts" than usual.

Here are a few samples culled at random during the past couple of days:

"The pace is good but not as good as expected. However, the outlook for the economy over the next few months is difficult to chart statistically. Nevertheless, the country's prospects are favorable and based on a firm foundation."

"On balance the spring months seem to have witnessed a continuation of the mild business expansion... but leading business cycle indicators have shown little if any strength."

"Annual forecasts made six months ago indicated that 1962 would result in appreciable economic gains. At present it now generally appears that the forecasts will not be fully attained, although 1962's gross national product should be up substantially over last year's."

"The outlook for the economy over the next few months is difficult to chart statistically. Nevertheless, the country's prospects are favorable and based on a firm foundation."

"On balance the spring months seem to have witnessed a continuation of the mild business expansion... but leading business cycle indicators have shown little if any strength."

"Annual forecasts made six months ago indicated that 1962 would result in appreciable economic gains. At present it now generally appears that the forecasts will not be fully attained, although 1962's gross national product should be up substantially over last year's."

The lowered margin requirements announced by the U.S. federal reserve board Monday—down from 70 to 50 per cent—had a stimulating effect on U.S. stock exchanges which spilled over strongly to Canadian exchanges.

However, it would be difficult to find any investment man around these parts willing to guarantee that the rally will be long-sustained.

Margin changes have never by themselves produced a change in the trend although there is some evidence that they have preceded by three to six months a reverse in the market.

Houk Was Hasty

Quick Changes Hamper Amerks In 3-1 Setback

By JOE REICHLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Second-guessers were questioning manager Ralph Houk's early removal of his starting players in the American League's 3-1 all-star loss to the National League and wondered today whether he would employ the same tactics in the second mid-summer meeting in Chicago's Jim Landis, in centre field.

Houk's questioned strategy took place in the seventh inning Tuesday when he took Roger Maris, along with three others, out of the lineup and replaced last year's home run king with Chicago's Jim Landis, in centre field.

As a result, Landis, a less distinguished long ball hitter, came to bat in the eighth with Maris home run would have tied the game. Landis struck out.

"I thought six innings was about right for Maris," Houk explained in the losers' dressing room later. "I wanted everybody to play."

Rog Came Close

Don Drysdale, the National League starter, struck out Maris in his first time at bat but the major league home run king nearly knocked the ball out of the park in each of his next two times at bat. Facing Juan Marichal in the fourth, he drove Willie Mays to the centre field fence for his 400-foot drive. In the sixth, with Bob Purkey on the mound, Mays made a spectacular catch of Roger's bid for a three-run homer. Wondrous Willie crashed into the fence in deepest right centre as he made the leaping catch, his glove reaching above the eight-foot fence.

Rich Rollins, who had singled and gone to third on Billy Moran's single, scampered home after the catch for the Americans' only run. Bob Shaw held them to one hit in the last two innings.

Mays, the defensive star of the game, shared hero honors with Stan Musial and Maury Wills, the mercury-footed shortstop who hails from the nation's capital.

Mays didn't get a hit but he was tremendous afield. Besides his long runs to haul down blasts by Maris, he cut off a potential run with a fine play on Moran's long single to left centre in the sixth, and closed the game with a catch of Luis Aparicio's smash to the fence in deep right centre.

Stan Sparks Rally

Musial, who watched Drysdale and Marichal of the Nationals and Jim Bunning and Pascual of the Americans pitch scoreless ball through five innings, came off the bench in the sixth and slashed a pinch-hit single to ignite a two-run rally. It was the 20th hit in the 22nd all-star game for the great St. Louis Cardinal.

Wills, sent in to run for Musial, gave the American League the first taste of his famed speed by stealing second, then scored the first run of the game on Dick Groat's single. Groat advanced to second on Roberto Clemente's third hit, a single to left, reached third on Mays' fly to deep centre and scored on Orlando Cepeda's infield out.

Wills, the Dodgers speed king who has stolen 46 bases this season, dropped a Texas League single into left off Cleveland's Dick Donovan in the eighth. When Jim Davenport singled to left, Wills tore around second. Colavito, playing left field, threw behind Wills to second base, but Maury had picked up speed, and continued on to third. Second baseman Bobby Richardson's throw to Brooks Robinson came a fraction of a second too late to nip the diving runner.

Still Wills was not finished. When Felipe Alou fouled out to Leon Wagner along the right field foul line, Wills tagged up and scored, sliding in under catcher John Rohlfing's tag.

Marichal, San Francisco's right-handed ace, was the winner. He succeeded Drysdale, who gave up one hit in the first three runless innings, and permitted only a walk in the next two innings.

$6,141.60 FOR DEUCE —AND 20 CASHED IN!

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Mystic Warrior and Gotta Do, both almost universally overlooked, won the first two races at Hollywood Park Tuesday and produced a daily double payoff of $6,141.60 — highest of the track's history.

Getting into play, President Kennedy removes sun glasses as foul ball arcs

KENNEDY A MUSIAL FAN ...

... AND VICE-VERSA

The Feelings Are Mutual...

WASHINGTON (AP)—Had it not been for Stan Musial, who in the District of Columbia Stadium calls him "my buddy," President Kennedy could have been credited with a wholly nonpartisan performance at baseball's All-Star game.

Shirt-sleeved, sipping a soft drink, puffing a cigar and cracking peanuts from a bag, Kennedy clearly enjoyed himself in the company of 45,000 other fans at Tuesday's contest in the District of Columbia Stadium.

He applauded spectacular catches by the National League's Willie Mays and the American League's Roger Maris. He applauded each run as the Nationals beat the Americans 3-1.

But the president really binged his palms together for Stan the Man, joining the ovation when Musial stepped to the plate as a pinch-hitter in the sixth inning and singled. He clapped vigorously as the St. Louis Cardinal's marvel received a second ovation when he trotted off the field.

Musial had a good time himself, including a visit along with American League shortstop Luis Aparicio to the presidential box before the game.

Kennedy informed all the high-level government officials who sat with him that Musial had campaigned for him in 1960, and Kennedy reminded Kennedy of the first time they met.

That was in Milwaukee, and Musial recalled for reporters after the game that when they shook hands, Kennedy said: "They tell me you are too old to play ball and I am too young to run for president. I have a hunch we'll both fool them."

At that time, Musial was 39 and Kennedy was 43.

Norburns Flying For This Meeting

Dickinson Says Fans at Fault —Not Players

Burnaby Norburns have an Inter-City Lacrosse League date in Memorial Arena with Victoria Shamrocks tonight, and the last word has it that they'll make the trip from the mainland by plane.

While the Norburn executive fumes—and denies—charges of player misbehavior, the B.C. government ferries were still "off limits" to the lacrosse team.

An "immediate retraction" was demanded by Burnaby manager Bill Dickinson today from ferry executives for blaming Norburns for incidents aboard a ferry June 30 and banning the team from using the government ships.

Ron Worley, assistant-general manager of the ferry system announcing the ban Tuesday, said Norburn players threw objects on the deck and behaved rudely.

Thomson Steps To Early Lead

TROON, Scotland (CP)—Peter Thomson of Australia, bidding for his fifth British Open golf championship, moved into the early lead today with a two-under-par 70 as play got under way among 119 qualifiers for the 1962 title.

Thomson was out in 36 and holed birdie putts of 15 and 12 feet on his way back with a 34. American Arnold Palmer, last year's champion, was only one stroke behind with a sharp one-under-par 71. He went out and English pro Peter Butler turned in steady 72s but former champion Max Faulkner of England found all the trouble spots on the Troon course and took a fantastic 84, including 11 at the 485-yard, 11th hole.

He three-putted the 11th and the last green for an inward score of 40 and stalked disgustedly off the course.

The course played hard for early starters after a heavy overnight rain, which left the fairways soggy and the greens inconsistent.

Also shooting respectable rounds today were Jimmy Martin of England, 73; Harold Henning of South Africa, 74, and another South African, Brian Wilkes, 75.

MEN BEHIND THE DERBY

SOLARIUM CORNER

Bert Nex is more of a golfer than a fisherman these days, but the Solarium Derby is still a big date on his calendar.

Bert, 59, has seen the work that the Queen Alexandra Solarium does for crippled children, and he realizes just how important it is to help that cause.

Since the Solarium Derby, Vancouver Island's largest one-day fishfest, this year set for July 22, is designed to do just that, Bert is solidly behind it.

The first year that Bert worked with Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association officials, he sold over $1,000 worth of tickets. He still wants to sell as many as possible.

"My nephew was in the Solarium," he says. "I know just how good their work is." You can help support the Solarium, and also earn a chance on a prize of $300, by phoning Bert at EV 4-4809.

Cycle Rivalry Picks Up Again

Ken Hay of Victoria and Vancouver's Jack Ferguson resume their cycle rivalry Sunday when the annual Gary Lund Memorial Trophy race is staged.

One of the province's top pedal events, the 100-mile grind will start at Quilicum Beach at 6 a.m. and the leading riders should hit the finish line on the Trans-Canada Highway at Portage Inlet around 10.15.

More than 20 riders are scheduled to compete for the main trophy, donated in memory of Gary Lund, Seattle cycling ace who was killed in an accident shortly after finishing second in the Times Centennial 100-mile race in 1958. It will be presented Sunday by Lee Lund, father of the late cyclist.

Heading the list will be Hay and Ferguson, who have split honors in many races this year. Ferguson won the race last year but this year the two have been running one-two and take your pick in many races throughout the Pacific Northwest.

Other riders entered are John Wilson (Seattle), Morris Robinson (Seattle), Don Curry (Portland), John de Jong

Naval Vets Move In On Leading Workers

Naval Vets are hanging right in there and now, if Transport Workers ever lose a game or two, the Vets could grab the Senior Amateur Baseball League lead.

The Vets moved to within a game of the leading Transport Workers Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park by whomping last-place Builders, 12-2, as Keith Todd picked up his seventh straight victory with a seven-hitter.

Gorge Graham and Joe Patterson were the big guns at the plate, each banging out three hits for the winners.

Tonight at 6:30 the Transport Workers come up against Eagles, who can be tough.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Mystic Warrior and Gotta Do, both almost universally overlooked, won the first two races at Hollywood Park Tuesday and produced a daily double payoff of $6,141.60 — highest of the track's history.

Only twenty $2 daily double tickets were sold on this combination.

Mystic Warrior won the 1 1/4-mile first race and returned $70. Gotta Do, a photofinish winner in the second, paid $111.20. Mystic Warrior was ridden by Pete Moreno and Gotta Do by Willie Harms.

This was the second-highest daily double return in California history. The highest, $8,711.40, was at Golden Gate Nov. 16, 1960.

Hollywood Park's biggest previous daily double return was $3,750, on June 16 last year.

On Monday, the Saanich flyweights stopped City 8-2, and the midgets' downed City, 8-4.

A Tough Racket!

EDMONTON (CP)—Jim Crigger, 215-pound defensive end from East Tennessee State trying out with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, has turned in his equipment. Crigger worked out twice a day for eight days at the Eskimo training camp before deciding to quit.

Three U.S. golfers who each finished with 142 made the men's outcome harder to figure. The women's picture was clearer.

Gayle Hitchens, who has popped up with two major B.C. titles and is only 18, toured Capilano in par 76 when Musial stepped to the plate as a pinch-hitter in the sixth inning and singled. He clapped vigorously as the St. Louis Cardinal's marvel received a second ovation when he trotted off the field.

Musial had a good time himself, including a visit along with American League shortstop Luis Aparicio to the presidential box before the game.

Kennedy informed all the high-level government officials who sat with him that Musial had campaigned for him in 1960, and Kennedy reminded Kennedy of the first time they met.

That was in Milwaukee, and Musial recalled for reporters after the game that when they shook hands, Kennedy said: "They tell me you are too old to play ball and I am too young to run for president. I have a hunch we'll both fool them."

At that time, Musial was 39 and Kennedy was 43.

TEE TOPICS

(Since Times golf editor Ernie Federuk was on vacation during the B.C. Amateur tournament, ghost columnist Peter Matthews has taken the opportunity to step on the tee today.)

By PETER MATTHEWS

In retrospect, the B.C. Amateur at Oak Bay had a little bit of everything for everybody.

It offered at least five different kinds of weather—from the gales of Sunday's practice round to the tranquil beauty of Saturday's final—and some mercurial golf, as witness Bert Ticehurst's sizzling 64 on Monday and tepid 74 of Tuesday.

It saw some club golfers like Gordie Pellow and Bob Hunt clobber established stars and reach parously close to the finals. It saw Freddy Ranson start a match with two birdies and then dissolve with eight shanks in a row. It saw Dr. George Bigelow miss qualifying by one putt and then tee off, incongruously, in a flight against beardless Ricky Kent. And it provided some "officiating" which had the galleries buzzing.

It became fellow-columnist Harry Young's unhappy lot to make two calls against defending champion Bob Kidd. In the qualifying round, Harry (a BCGA official) ruled Kidd's ball out of bounds on the 11th hole. And in the final, he was compelled to forfeit the 12th against the Vancouver golfer when Kidd bent a weed under which his ball had come to rest.

Young was correct in both calls. The second one seemed to bother Kidd, which is surprising in view of his long experience. He should know the rules.

In the afternoon round, Kidd permitted himself another type on the seventh hole, after knocking his first iron from the teeing area onto the beach. A tee-backing-up, involuntary step stepped on the champion's ball, sinking it into the turf. As he approached, Kidd murmured caustically: "Fans here really want me to win, don't they?"

The remark was as unworthy of the champion as it was irrelevant. Wakeham lay two on the green; Kidd three, off it. Little short of a miracle could have won—or tied—the hole for him.

One of the joys of tournament-watching is to study the contrasts in personalities as they encounter different situations. If you get the impression from the foregoing that Kidd was "difficult," then I have misled you; the little annoyances mentioned were isolated and perhaps not too important.

In the main, he impressed as a veritable Perry Como of the links—so relaxed and casual as to appear at times almost indifferent. He also impressed as an astute veteran who happened, unfortunately, to be a little off this game at a time when he needed every shot.

Wakeham, on the other hand, was a study in furious concentration; a boy so hungry for victory that he showed up on the first tee for the afternoon round Saturday fully 15 minutes ahead of time, and paced coltishly back and forth until BCGA president Alan Clarke said: "Go to it, boys."

It is this very frowning intensity which gives golf-watchers a misconception of Wakeham's nature. After his matches, he is amiable enough and willing to talk golf (in somewhat "zooty" style) until the clubhouse lights are turned out. When someone asked him about a club used into the teeth of a gale, he replied: "I knifed a deuce."

(Translation: he punched a two-iron low, into the wind.) On the course, he is a study in sombre dedication, meriting his nickname of "Rock." He worked terribly hard to win that tournament, and his place on the Willingdon Cup team. Through the week, he played the best golf of anyone around. He putted magnificently. He was in three bunkers in 139 holes.

He is, therefore, a deserving champion and, given the confidence that a B.C. title must afford him, we may expect great things from him at Sunningdale in a month's time.

She may be the boss' wife, but in my book the woman-golfer-of-the-week is Mrs. Stuart Keate.

Last Thursday, while walking away from the fifth tee at Oak Bay, she was hit by a flying ball coming down the fourth fairway and suffered a broken nose.

On Friday, she had her nose straightened and reset by Dr. Norman Cook.

On Saturday, she returned to Oak Bay (behind dark glasses) to follow the Wakeham-Kidd final.

On Sunday, she practised nine holes.

And on Monday, playing in the 15-and-under handicap competition, she tied with Maureen Hiberson for runner-up in the low net division. They had 79s.

By SAM SNEAD

PARIS (CP-Reuters) — The fate of a controversial proposal on a two-year trial for open tennis tournaments appeared a toss-up today as delegates of the International Lawn Tennis Federation opened their annual meeting here.

Newspapermen who have sounded out delegates from the 57 member countries estimated that between 60 and 70 per cent of them are in favor of allowing any country to stage tournaments open to amateurs and professionals alike for a two-year experimental period.

Canada is one of the countries supporting the idea. Representing Canadian tennis here is John Bassett of Toronto, publisher of the Toronto Telegram. He is a member of the federation's management committee and a past president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

WANT SIMPLE VOTE

A proposal supporting open tennis was scheduled to be put before the delegates today by the management committee.

It was believed that some delegates will try to get the issue dealt with on a simple majority vote instead of the two-thirds majority vote that is required to change the federation's rules.

They argue that because the proposal for open tennis is for a two-year experimental period only, no change in rules would be required.

Three of the four major tennis powers—the United States, Britain and France—have said they plan to battle for the proposal.

Against them are Australia and possibly Germany, The Netherlands, South Africa and Belgium.

If you finish a full swing flat-footed, chances are your right side didn't continue through after impact. If it did, you would have finished with your weight on your left leg—where it belongs.

Stop pivoting and you can expect a short, off-line shot.

Remedy this by continuing your swing with your whole body. Keep your left hip pivoting to the left and the right hip has to follow.

Make sure your right heel comes up off the ground, and dig in with the right toe to keep the weight shifting to the left.

Investors Urge Ottawa's Return To 'Orthodoxy'

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The big and influential Investment Dealers' Association of Canada today blamed a string of federal government deficits for a financial atmosphere of "apprehension and concern."

The IDAC in a brief to the royal commission on banking and finance called for an immediate return to "fiscal orthodoxy"—deficits only in recession periods, with budget balances in other years to help retire federal debts.

The association said that neither text books nor tradition shed much light on why the government ran up seven deficits in eight years—with another one forecast this year—regardless of highs and lows in the economy, and despite "stifling" levels of taxation.

URGES TAX REVISIONS

It urged a study leading to a sweeping revision of the Canadian tax structure and listed these consequences—among others—of the government's taxing and spending policy:

1. The deficits, along with the money supply increase to pay for them, have led to "wide-spread and growing distrust" in government's economic policies as their price stability—normally the main attraction for investors—had been sharply reduced.

2. The Bank of Canada, as the government's debt manager, had been put into a "troublesome conflict of interest position" in which objectives of sound monetary policy—including the fight against inflation—had been sacrificed or delayed from time to time. Monetary policy had become "quite ineffective."

Presumably, the association said, the government was trying to alleviate unemployment when it set out a few years ago on an enlarged spending program and broader welfare payments.

"Evidence of success from this policy is inconclusive," the brief said.

SETS ALTERNATIVE

In recommending overhaul of the tax structure, the IDAC raised the possibility of using indirect taxes—such as sales and excise taxes—as an alternative or partial alternative to income taxes.

Taxes now are too high and too complicated in Canada, the association said. They were destroying incentive. Simplification was badly needed.

No reference was made by the IDAC to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's May 5 pledge during the election campaign of a royal commission to examine tax structure.

Rather, the association suggested that the job be handled by a select committee made up of representatives from business and finance along with "practical economists," officials of the Canadian Tax Foundation, and lawyers and accountants.

Among the other IDAC recommendations:

Debt management for the federal government should be taken away from the Bank of Canada and given to the finance department.

Repeal of the statutory six-per-cent ceiling on lending rates for the chartered banks and Quebec savings banks.

A federal budget address every April, followed by a government state-of-the-nation speech every October.

Legislation to clarify the Bank of Canada's relationship to the government.

An improved procedure of resignation of the central bank governor, to avoid "the unhappy events of 1961"—James E. Coyne's departure.

CIGARET FIRM NOT TO BLAME FOR CANCER

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A federal court jury deliberated 50 minutes Tuesday and found the Philip Morris Company was not responsible for a cancer contracted by a cigarette smoker.

John T. Ross, 62, a former officer of the Kansas City Better Business Bureau, had sued Philip Morris for $250,000.

Ross lost his voice box and other organs of his throat in an operation for the removal of a cancer in 1952. He contended his long and exclusive smoking of Philip Morris cigarettes caused the cancer.

MARTIN:

'Diefenbaker Should Call Parliament'

CORNWALL (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has "no right" to represent Canada at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London without first calling Parliament into session, Liberal MP Paul Martin said Tuesday night.

Addressing a rally of about 300 persons in support of Lucien Lamoureux, Liberal candidate for the Cornwall seat in the most riding election, Mr. Martin said:

"In view of the fact he now heads a minority government, Mr. Diefenbaker has no right to go to the prime ministers' conference without having summoned Parliament and told Parliament the attitude he is going to follow at that conference."

The conference, scheduled to open Sept. 10, is to discuss Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market.

Mr. Martin said that for Canada, "everything depends" on pursuing the right attitude towards the Common Market.

Pearson Back at Desk

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson returned to his desk Tuesday after a post-election campaign holiday salmon fishing on New Brunswick's Restigouche River. The Liberal leader returns to the political wars later this week when he will speak in the campaign for the Stormont riding in eastern Ontario, where the June 18 election was deferred because of the death of the Liberal candidate.

Top Reporter Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Allan Kent, 47, veteran reporter with The Telegram, died in hospital Tuesday after a long illness.

Recession Coming Says Economist

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada likely is heading for a year-long recession starting late this year, John Sawyer, economics professor of the University of Toronto, said today.

He told a federal conciliation board studying new contract demands presented by the railways' 100,000 non-operating employees that the recession probably will have turned again into a period of economic expansion through 1964 and 1965.

He was called before the board as a witness by the railways to give a forecast of what Canada's economy will be doing during the years a new non-ops contract could be expected to run.

He said that Canada still is in a period of economic expansion that began mid-way through last year, although signs of weakness have started to appear.

'WILL END SOON'

These weaknesses indicate that the present expansion will not develop into a boom such as Canada experienced starting in 1955, but will come to an end soon, he said.

Professor Sawyer was the last witness scheduled to be called by the railways in building their case against the non-ops new demands.

The three-man board was expected to adjourn today for a week and then reconvene for rebuttal arguments. Its chairman is Mr. Justice Craig Monroe of the Supreme Court of British Columbia. The railway nominee is Halifax lawyer Gordon Cooper and David Lewis of Toronto is the union representative.

The 15 CLC-affiliated unions that negotiate jointly with the seven railways involved in the dispute presented their basic case earlier.

Their demands include a 22-cent-an-hour wage increase, a job security proposal that amounts to a virtual job freeze and higher welfare benefits.

Insecticide Shampoo Fatal

FOGGIA, Italy (AP)—Two little girls died Monday after their mother shampooed their hair with insecticide. Police said Antonietta Resina, 28, told them "What's good to clean the fields should be good to clean my daughters, dirty from playing in the mud." The two girls, Angela, 3, and Maddalena, 6, died after developing headaches and black spots on their bodies.

Perrault 'Damaging' Province

Attorney-General Robert Bonner Tuesday charged Liberal leader Ray Perrault with irresponsible and misleading statements about investor confidence in B.C.

Mr. Bonner, also trade minister, said Mr. Perrault was doing damage to the province. The Liberal leader earlier demanded a special session of the legislature on finance matters.

He said investors were withholding capital from B.C. He claimed that investors would be ready to spend $50,000,000 in the province as soon as Premier Bennett was defeated. "I am sure he has no authority to make any such statement on behalf of any financial house anywhere," said Mr. Bonner.

"My impression is a handful of people are so anxious to criticize the premier that they couldn't care less what damage they may be doing to the province."

Mr. Bonner also attacked Vancouver city council for "almost malicious" statements about B.C. finance policy, and metropolitan newspapers for not giving "reasonable interpretation" to government news.

'MORE NEWSWORTHY'

"The basic disposition is to make it seem strange and weird no doubt on the theory that this is more newsworthy."

Mr. Bonner said capital investment in B.C. remains high despite finance troubles across Canada.

Before the current federal austerity drive began, he said the Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures indicated investment prospects here this year were the best in the last three years.

He cited great interest in B.C. oil and gas, including a recent $4,000,000 sale of oil and gas rights.

In answer to Mr. Perrault's call for an audit of B.C.'s books, Mr. Bonner said the Liberal leader had ample time to raise questions during debate on estimates of the finance department during the last legislative session.

"The government's financial position was not inspiring,"

Sally Ann Drive Zips Over Top

Local Salvation Army fund drive has exceeded its 1962 goal of $50,000 by $5,000, with all donations not yet counted, it was announced on Tuesday night.

Achievement of the target of this year's Red Shield campaign was announced by campaign chairman J. Courtney Haddock at a dinner preceding a public farewell to Brig. and Mrs. Clifford Milley.

Total of monies tabulated so far was $55,412. Special names division alone, under the chairmanship of former mayor Percy Scurren, netted $20,905. Residential canvass collected $18,300.

TO HAMILTON

Brig. Milley, who has served here as Salvation Army public relations director in B.C. for 22 years, is leaving shortly for Hamilton, Ont., where he is to take up the post of second-in-command of the Southern Ontario district.

Tributes to the work of the Milleys in Victoria and the province were paid by public officials and leaders in the community.

Welfare Minister W. D. Black, speaking on behalf of the provincial government, said that the brigadier's "crowning achievement" had been the Matson Lodge.

"Brigadier Milley has given of himself unselfishly so that others might have a better place to live," he said.

In saying goodbye, Mr. Black said he could only add, "well done thou good and faithful servant."

Other tributes came from Stuart Keate, publisher of the Times, representing Victoria businessmen; Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay on behalf of the city and outlying municipalities; Frank Norton, representing Victoria Rotary, of which Brig. Milley is a member; and W. R. McIntyre, chairman of the advisory board.

Chairman of the evening was Brig. Leslie Pindred from Vancouver. He invited audience support for the Milleys' successors, Major and Mrs. Ronald Frewing. Major Frewing is a native Victorian who has been serving most recently in Regina.

Baritone solos were sung by Capt. Bruce Robertson, another Victorian home on leave, who has been posted to Bermuda with his wife.

More Girls In Trouble Last Year

Number of youngsters held in Greater Victoria juvenile detention home last year fell by 11 to a total of 130 but the proportion of girls rose sharply.

Annual report of the detention home, received at City Hall Tuesday, said 20 of the 141 juveniles held pending trial in 1960 were girls.

Last year, the ratio had risen to 35 girls and 95 boys.

Majority of the boys were 14 and 15 years old but the girls generally fell into the 15 and 16 age category.

ANNUAL WARNING

The report by home supervisor Charles Ball reiterated an annual warning that the home is inadequate and dangerous.

He pointed out it has been condemned by Chief James Bayliss and has insufficient space resulting sometimes in children having to be held in the city jail.

Lack of segregation facilities for dividing hardened criminal cases from first offenders creates discipline difficulties and leads to repeated damage to the premises.

Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee currently is working on a proposal to build a new joint detention home at an estimated cost of $100,000, behind Spencerhouse and tenders are expected to be called next month.

Test Cases Due On Bingo Games

A close watch on bingo games and a bid for test cases in court were pledged Tuesday by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

Mr. Bonner issued a two-page statement of what he called "guidelines" for bingo operators.

Bingo is apparently a multi-million dollar business in B.C., he said. RCMP and departmental officials have been conducting a "quiet survey" for some time.

"Local law enforcement agencies and prosecutors are being asked to warn organizations of questionable conduct where appropriate," he said.

"It is anticipated that one of two test cases may result, by arrangement, where contention exists as to what the law provides."

THREE TYPES

Mr. Bonner said there are three types of bingo operation:

Games run by charitable or religious groups not incorporated as clubs under the societies act;

Bona fide social club games; Newspapers or radio bingo, some of which is sponsored by charity groups.

Canada the first group may only operate games "occasionally."

Mr. Bonner cited a precedent in the courts defining occasionally as "sporadic" not as often as once every other week.

SPLINTER GROUPS

He added it has been suggested large organizations

Contract Let On Mill Job

British Columbia Forest Products Limited announced today that a contract has been let to Burns & Dutton Concrete and Construction Company Limited, of Vancouver, for the framing and pouring of the ground floor slab and footings for the new newsprint mill buildings being constructed at Crofton.

A. D. Hamilton, vice-president pulp and paper for the company, stated this foundation work will start on or about July 20 and is to be completed by Nov. 30. It is estimated that from 30 to 40 men will be employed in the work.

BOY CHAINED, PADLOCKED BY MOTHER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—

An eight-year-old boy was found standing in the middle of a street Tuesday—his feet chained together and held by a padlock.

The boy, Larry Hayes, said his mother chained him because he had been in juvenile court on a charge of stealing a watch.

The child was found by Charles Powell, father of Lieut. Larkin Powell of juvenile court. The younger Powell charged the parents, who have 17 children, with neglect and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

"While it would appear that this is a course of action for the purpose of circumventing the law, the legality of such a procedure may have to be examined by a test case," said Mr. Bonner.

'CUSTOMARY'

The second group, incorporated social clubs, may hold "customary" or regular games. But each player may be charged no more than 10 cents an hour or 50 cents a day to participate. All operating expenses must be paid from these fees.

If players provide their own jackpot, there could be a violation of the Criminal Code, said Mr. Bonner.

He virtually ruled out newspapers and radio bingo.

It "may" violate the code, he said.

Where any goods or merchandise are disposed of by a game of chance, organizations involved should obtain legal advice, he suggested.

Agricultural fairs or exhibitions are exempt, he said.

Top-Notch Entries For Regatta

PORT ALBERNI — Motorboats from all parts of the Pacific Northwest, and a few from as far away as California, are expected to participate in the annual Sproat Lake regatta on Sunday.

Among boats competing will be the world record-holding B. Utility, runabout, owned by Barry Pearce of Victoria. It holds the record for the mile straightaway.

Mr. Pearce recently purchased the boat. Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni will officially open the regatta at 11 a.m., and Miss Port Alberni (Marian Balmer) will present trophies to the winners in the 12 hydroplane classes.

GOOD VIEW

The regatta committee have completed plans for the sport, which attracts people from all over the island.

Observers will be afforded a fine view of the races as they are held right in front of Sproat Lake Park.

On display at the park will be a pre-Second World War champion racer, the Golden Arrow, owned by E. D. Stone of Port Alberni.

Prior to the regatta there will be a dance Saturday in Sproat Lake Community Hall with Barry Miller's group as music-makers.

Colin Roberts, 950 Hunter Street, Nanaimo, had been in a coma in Royal Jubilee Hospital ever since the car he was driving overturned on the Nanaimo-Lakes Road March 25.

Shortly after the crash police reported that Roberts had little chance of surviving his head injuries. Two other youths in the car at the time it overturned suffered only minor injuries.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Handel Roberts, travelled to Victoria frequently to visit their unconscious son but he never came out of the coma.

He died at 1 a.m. this morning. No inquest or funeral details have been announced.

LADYSMITH — Anna Rolison of Yellow Point, is recovering in hospital here from injuries received when she was in collision with a car driven by Gary Pearce, a UBC student.

She suffered a broken leg, a broken arm, broken fingers and abrasions.

'GO ANYWHERE' BOAT POPULAR WITH OCEAN WANDERERS

For the man who wants to go cruising, come hail or high winds, owner Ted Perkins of Los Angeles recommends a trawler-type craft such as his 63-foot Tiki. Built in Norway, hull design is identical with fishing craft which ply North Atlantic in all kinds of weather; on her way here from California, Tiki proved her worth by taking seas over the wheelhouse without "much discomfort" to those aboard. About a dozen of this type are now operating as pleasurecraft out of California ports.

MONTE ROBERTS

It's rude to read other people's mail, but . . .

Dear Mary Jean:
Oh, dear, you must think I'm awful, not even sending you a postcard since we left L.A. but we've been so busy busy and I'll try to make up for it by writing you a whole letter.

Well here we are in Victoria, Canada, which is that big red mark on the map between us and the Russians.

And, Mary Jean, do you know, we love it so much here, we would like to stay forever.

Just today we were down at a place called the Causeway, and my, you never saw so much fun and excitement! Just like Fishermen's Wharf, up there in San Fran, but without the fish. You know, water and low tide and people all walking around and about, taking pictures of each other.

And then there were those sweet, sweet, sightseeing drivers, each of them with a cute gimmick proving HIS sightseeing ride was better than the OTHER GUY's sightseeing ride. Mary Jean, you'd swear you were back in L.A., trying to decide which "See the homes of the stars" tour you'd take.

We went on one of the tours, and it was wonderful. Mind you, the people in Victoria are just a WEE bit backward, there are still a few trees left. But they are doing the best they can, and are putting up some really tall apartments to block out the view.

And you have to hand it to their city-street departments. They have a most intriguing assortment of "closed-to-traffic" signs. Just like on South Main or Hollywood Boulevard.

Mind you, the Victoria people don't have a freeway yet, but they have a thing called the "Roundabout" which is just as confusing.

The drivers here aren't as fast as in L.A., but they make as much noise with their horns and exhausts, and are far more unpredictable, which really makes for more fun, don't you think?

There's one thing here which isn't quite up to L.A. or San Fran standards, though. That's the smog. You have to go to certain sections of the city to find smog, but once you know your way around, it's really no trouble at all.

There are lots of flashing advertising signs, too, and no left turn, don't stop, don't park, don't drive signs, so we really feel right at home here.

But it's back at the Causeway, that I started to tell you about, you really feel at home—people handing you leaflets and pamphlets and walking around with ads for eateries. We were just about ready to settle down here when we heard Victoria is actually a Little Bit of Old England—and you know Fred, he can't STAND anything English, his folks come from Ireland.

So I guess we'll be coming back to L.A., after all. Fred says this is a wonderful place to visit, but

Love, Debby Lou.

Cruiser Burns On Trial Run

Two men jumped into the water to escape flames that raged a $5,700, home-built cabin cruiser while she was on her trial run Tuesday off Campbell River.

One of the boat's owner-builders, Dave Murphy and a companion, Dave Morgan, were picked up by other boats. They were unhurt.

The fire aboard the 19-foot craft followed an explosion. The boat was sunk at a dock to douse the flames.

CPO BURNETT

NADEN TEACHER

$16 a Month Makes Him 'Big Daddy'

Being a bachelor father with an "adopted" daughter whom he has never seen has proved a rewarding experience for CPO F.-G. Burnett, an electronics teacher at the Naval Technical School, HMCS Naden.

Last October, CPO Burnett became interested in the Foster Parents' plan, which provides cash, food, clothing and medical care for needy children in foreign lands. He was especially touched by the plight of little Regina Corrales, 9, of Manila, in the Philippine Islands, and agreed to "adopt" her by paying $16 a month into the Foster Parents plan.

Regina is one of seven children of a widowed mother who, when Burnett stepped in, was trying to feed her family on 37 cents a day.

"Regina's mother writes regularly," he said today. "Every letter is a little more optimistic. I am happy. I decided to join the plan."

A bachelor, Burnett said he just decided to become a foster parent because he thought it would be interesting to see what his contributions could do.

"They seem to have helped," he said.

He has never been in the Philippines, but hopes that some day there'll be a navy cruise in that area with him aboard.

B.C. Men Home From World Parks Conference

Worldwide interest in park problems was stressed by Dr. David B. Turner, deputy minister of parks and recreation, who returned this week from representing British Columbia at the First World Conference of National Parks in Seattle.

The purpose of the conference, Dr. Turner said, was "to exchange information in a field of common interest."

Suggested in 1958 by Dr. Tsuyoshi Tanihara of Japan, the parks conference works closely with United Nations agencies. Three hundred delegates attended from 70 countries, among them The Congo, Spain, Uruguay, Nigeria and Mexico.

Decision Soon On Terminal For Airport

'Very Strong Case' Claims Chatterton

It will be two to three weeks before a final decision from Ottawa on a go-ahead this year for a new terminal at Patricia Bay airport, MP George Chatterton said today.

The Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative MP has just returned from a four-day trip to Ottawa where he requested action on a number of local works projects.

Mr. Chatterton said the federal treasury board will decide if the airport terminal goes ahead.

"If the word is yes, tenders would be called immediately," he said.

'STRONG CASE'

"I think we have a very strong case," said Mr. Chatterton.

The government was already morally and legally committed to the project.

One of the commitments is handing over the present terminal hangar to Fairley Aviation Ltd., which has already bought it for expanding its Pat Bay plant.

Mr. Chatterton said indication of the government's intent to go ahead with the project is that work on an apron for aircraft at the new terminal site has been resumed after a one-day halt when the new Ottawa austerity program was announced last month.

Mr. Chatterton said he also asked federal officials to provide road access to East Saanich Road.

Present plans are for a new road from the terminal to Pat Bay Highway to replace Willington Road, which will be closed. There are no plans for a link to East Saanich Road. Mr. Chatterton said it would be needed by Victoria Flying Services, the navy and for fire protection purposes.

$14,000 GRANT

He said he was successful in securing treasury board approval for another local project—a $14,000 grant toward cold storage facilities for Saanich Fruit Growers Association.

He said the new plant will allow local farmers to compete with U.S. frozen food markets.

Mr. Chatterton also asked the government to consider a $5,000 grant to North and South Saanich Agricultural Association for rewiring show buildings.

The rewiring was necessary to avoid a condemnation order.

The association has not yet applied for the money, but will do so shortly, said Mr. Chatterton.

Hydro Staff Voting On Union

Fifteen hundred B.C. Hydro office employees are voting today on whether to join a trade union.

The vote is being run by the B.C. Labor Relations Board in Victoria and Vancouver offices of B.C. Hydro.

It follows an application for certification to the board from the Office Employees' International Union.

The union formerly represented B.C. Electric employees. Before B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission were merged this year there was no official union representation for the commission's office workers.

They had a private association in Victoria which dealt on an unofficial basis with the management.

Members of this association complained earlier this year the Office Employees' International was trying to force them to join.

The union then made a formal application to the Labor Board.

The board appointed chief conciliation officer Reg. Clements as returning officer for today's vote.

Mr. Clements said results will be given to the board, which will then decide if the union should be allowed in.

Usually a straight majority vote is sufficient to warrant certification.

JAMES BAY RESIDENTS MOUNT OFFENSIVE AGAINST PRECINCT

James Bay property owners are expected to turn out at a city council meeting Thursday loaded for bear.

Protest letters began arriving at City Hall today opposing a bylaw which would rezone a large area around the Parliament Buildings, freeing properties to their present uses.

Many will deliver their protests in person at a public hearing preceding the council meeting on the Parliament Building Precinct.

Four identical letters, signed by different property owners, said the precinct would only devalue property and create a bigger traffic problem.

WHO SAYS WE'RE FULL?

'Friends' Impede Flow of Tourists

Victoria's "friends" in Seattle are informing world's fair tourists that there is no accommodation available here, Ald. Michael Griffin told a meeting of sightseeing operators Tuesday night.

Chairman of the city traffic committee, he told the meeting that some Government Street operators are suffering a downturn in business, this year and feel that sightseeing operators monopolize tourists that arrive for only a few hours visit.

"A factor compounding this problem is that some of our good friends in the U.S.—I don't know if it's a conspiracy—are telling tourists there is no accommodation here," he said.

"So the tourists are just coming over for the afternoon."

'Give the Merchants a Chance'

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who proposed the step, said this would give tourists opportunity to range through the downtown area on the way back to the Inner Harbor ferry docks.

"We are lucky in all the business we are getting this year and the only question is how do we get the most out of it," he said. "If the bus tours deposited tourists in town it would give the merchants a chance."

Ald. Milard Mooney backed the proposal contending the "merchants have a legitimate beef" because they provide a major share in there is no shortage of accommodation and we have an excellent setup in our expediting. But we just can't seem to get that message across."

The 2½-hour meeting, called to iron out differences between sightseeing operators and merchants and also discuss changes in curbside stands in the Causeway area, was held in City Hall.

It wound up with agreement by sightseeing operators to use the city's Coroner Street parking lot as an unloading terminal for all sightseeing tours possible.

taxes of the city's $54,000 grant to the publicity bureau which is aimed at bringing tourist business here.

Taxi operator James Gorst sounded a warning that the parking lot terminal would not work.

"I think this meeting is trying to extract the golden egg from the goose that isn't going to lay," he said.

"I don't think the average tourist is going to be too concerned about shopping at 4 p.m. when there are 2,000 others jostling in line already to get a seat on the boat."

"They come here now to see the scenery, not to shop."

One Space Per Firm Opposed

Along with agreement to try the terminal unloading plan, the sightseeing operators agreed to a number of minor changes in curbside space allocations at the Causeway for soliciting and loading sightseeing vehicles.

But they expressed solid opposition to a retail merchants group suggestion that each company be limited to one bus space in the Causeway area.

They also turned thumbs down on a statement that Police Chief John Blackstock felt all sightseeing companies should be banned from free curbside stands and provide their own off-street parking.

"That would be the death-knell of sightseeing in Victoria," said Tallyho operator Arthur Knapp.

Mr. Gorst also warned that a single company was able to monopolize sightseeing in Vancouver after curbside stands were eliminated because smaller and independent operators were forced out of business.

Hat-Trick Possible At Revolver Meet?

Apart from the noise, the most outstanding feature of Victoria City Police Revolver Club's annual tournament which opened today is the variety of headgear.

Hats on the firing line today ranged from a smart Stetson to a ragged Sombrero, and one sharpshooter added a little dignity to the occasion in a somber black bowler.

It is doubtful, however, whether the exotic hats have any beneficial effect on the match scores.

"They're all just part of the game," a bare-headed contestant explained.

OLDEST MEET

The tournament—oldest continuous meet on the Pacific coast—is being held today and Thursday at the revolver range in picturesque Thetis Lake Park.

A record 60 entries have turned up for this, the 43rd annual shoot.

Besides the city police, teams from Vancouver, Spokane, U.S. Army, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Border Patrol, Saanich police, Oak Bay police and the RCMP are competing.

Marksmen from as far east as Winnipeg and as north as Alaska make up the ranks of individual competitors.

SIX MATCHES

Most of today's competition—six matches all told—was for individual firing .22 calibre target pistols.

Team competition with Service issue arms will take place on Thursday.

A novel match open to mayors, aldermen, councillors, reeves and chiefs of police of any municipality will be held on Thursday afternoon.

The tournament winds up with an awards dinner and dance at the Chez Marcel Thursday evening.

Causeway Sign For Centennial

Victoria Centennial Celebration Society today asked City Hall to put up a message on The Causeway overhead banner lights promoting the centenary.

Commission Prodded By Merchants

Ald. Michael Griffin today indicated a $700,000 project to put up a 400-car parking garage on View Street likely will be underway by the end of the month.

He is chairman of the city's parking commission which met this morning with about 25 downtown businessmen and was told that merchants were anxious for a quick start on the project. The tenders would be returnable in two weeks with the successful bidder expected to start demolition of the site immediately and proceed with construction of the four-storey building.

Tender call for the proposed 200-car garage on Yates at Langley is not expected for three or four months because of difficulties encountered in re-establishing one of the firms that would have to move.

BY NOV. 1
"However there was a development last night which brightened the picture on the Langley project," he said. "We are more hopeful now than we were yesterday but I still can't reveal the details."

If present plans proceed, the View Street garage should be ready for operation by Nov. 1 and the Langley garage by late winter," he said.

A real estate board appraisal of the View Street site said property acquisition should cost $217,500 while construction estimate is $480,000. This would give the city a $22,500 buffer under its original estimate of $730,000 for the project.

WELL BELOW

Similarly, a parking commission "guesstimate" on property acquisition and a construction estimate produces a total projection of $314,000 for the Langley garage well below the original $385,000 allowance.

If all the estimates prove correct, both garages will cost $1,027,000 compared with a $1,115,000 authorized by downtown ratepayers in a bylaw vote last year.

The parking commission was left in no doubt that merchants are worried about frequent delays in starting the parking projects.

NO MORE DELAYS

The 700 Block Yates Street Association, in a letter, said:

"The members are becoming increasingly worried regarding the delay in the erection of the parking facility planned for View Street and lower Yates Street."

"As the merchants in this block supported this project wholeheartedly, together with over 60 per cent of the downtown property owners, we feel that the city should proceed with building without any further delay."

The letter pointed out that street canopies were built on the block by merchants on the understanding that the parking projects would be carried out.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—How high is the tower at Blackpool, U.K., and is it higher than the space needle in the Seattle World's Fair?

Mrs. E. H.

A—The Blackpool tower, built on the seaside as a replica of the Eiffel Tower, is 520 feet high. The space needle is 605 feet in height.

Q—Will you please let me know the author of "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread?"

A.D.

A—The line "For fools rush in where angels fear to tread" appears in Alexander Pope's (1688-1744) Essay on Criticism, written in 1711.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Former Victoria naval officer Lt. Cmdr. Roger J. Mann has been appointed to command HMCS Acadia, sea cadet summer training camp near Sydney, N.S.

Romeo Paquette was elected 1962 president of Ward 2 Liberal Association at the weekend.

Joseph Tremblay is honorary past-president, Edward Wood vice-president, Mrs. Marga Grandmaison treasurer and Mrs. Mabel Smith secretary.

A suggestion by Kenneth H. J. Cook, 1178 Rhoda Lane, has earned a cash award from the suggestion award board of the Public Service of Canada.

A lawyer today accepted the blame because his client failed to appear in city police court Tuesday to answer a charge of illegal possession of a switchblade knife.

"The accused didn't appear because of my own error," F. T. Donegan told Magistrate William Ostler.

The magistrate on Tuesday ordered a warrant for the arrest of Stephen Bray, 19, 1759 Mortimer, who did not appear in court. He was free on $50 bail at the time.

Magistrate Ostler accepted the lawyer's explanation and Bray did not lose his bail money.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded to July 19 for trial.

Dancing on the green at Wilsons Park will begin tonight. Oak Bay Kiwanis Club's program of dancing in the evenings during the summer, scheduled to start last Wednesday, was rained out.

Winners of a summer charity tournament conducted by Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club were Ricki Nickells and Jim Duprau, and Ethel Cleworth and Les Stewart.

The Japanese art of growing dwarf trees—bonsai tree culture—has become so popular in Victoria that an organization will be formed this month for people interested in the hobby.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Go Hobo Or Go Western In Casual Summer Wear

By PENNY SAVER

Summer comfort is keynote of the clothes that Penny saw when shopping today. One bright red cotton blouse in a print that reminds you of a hobo's hanky pack dares you to bare your midriff. In fact, you have to, because blouse is only midriff length!

From collarless neckline to band waistline, there is a Liz ruffle. Short sleeves have same trim. Blouse is of 100 per cent cotton and requires little or no ironing when washed. It is priced at $3.98.

The same price, but very different is a blouse that features a western touch. Styled with four-button front, no collar and three-quarter-length roll-up sleeves, blouse also has a triangular scarf buttoned to back of neck. This will tie with a cowboy flair or unbuttoned and be a scarf to keep your hair in order when riding a bucking convertible. (And if you decide to hitchhike, it will look just right as a bundle hanging on the end of the stick over your shoulder!)

Continue to be relaxed in a colorful denim skirt with unpressed pleats. Color is supplied by dazzling array of varized stripes in orange, blue, yellow, beige, pink—all the sunny shades.

Attractive feature is large pocket on front of skirt. It is about eight inches wide and extends from middle of skirt to hemline.

Skirt comes in sizes 10 to 18 and is just $4.95. Bright, bright skirt can be topped with a cool beige, sleeveless pop top, styled with scoop neck. Blouse buttons up back and has tiny bit of skirt material as trim on each side of front. Price is $2.95.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It's Good Ol' Summertime
And Livin' Can Be Easy

Simplified housekeeping can make a big difference in how you weather the heat, and there are so many ways to simplify it. For instance, why not use paper napkins exclusively, even when entertaining? You can do this if you entertain more informally than usual. There are many really attractive paper napkins and disposable plates for buffet suppers and outdoor eating.

And speaking of outdoor eating, this is not only pleasant, but is a boon to the woman in the home because her husband becomes the chef at these times. This is special fun on weekends.

CLUB CALENDAR

Women's Parish Guild of Christ Church Cathedral, Friday, 2.30 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Garden tea, Ruth Chapter No. 22. Order of the Eastern Star, Saturday, 2.30 to 4.30 p.m. at home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard English, 6470 Patricia Bay Highway (opposite Seven Seas Marina).

Casserole dishes are wonderful for the evening meal when it is hot. These can be prepared in the morning before the temperature rises, and put in the refrigerator until you wish to heat them up at night. Those who have deep freezers would be wise to use them even more than usual during summer months. You can freeze sandwiches, chicken and meat, cakes and cookies, lots of these at one time, and then more or less forget food for a while. This saves working over the hot stove every day and also is helpful because one usually has many guests during the good-ol' summertime. The children do, too.

Remember that there are paper towels today which are really luxurious. They are absorbent and beautiful. Why not eliminate all possible laundry work?

High-calorie foods are heating as well as fattening. Cold sliced meat and fowl, and sea food, fresh fruits, green salads and garden vegetables are slimming and do not require constant and lengthy preparation.

Summer is a fine time to slim down!

If you would like to have my calorie chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36 to Josephine Lowman in care of this paper.

Getting a sample of transportation they'll be using soon when they board buses in London, Eng., are four young women who leave for an overseas holiday, Thursday. For the two in the center, the Misses Sandra Mayan and Sharon McDonald, the return journey will be of indefinite duration as they hope to be able to work there. Other two, Miss Margaret Smith, left, and Miss Avril Brett will return in the fall. The four friends will embark in the Ss. Oriana, docking in Southampton. On their itinerary are visits to London, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and other parts of mental Europe.—(Peter Chapman Photo.)

DEAR ABBY...

He's Got Much to Learn!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend has been overseas for two years. I just got a letter from him telling me he'll arrive home July 28th. We plan to marry as soon as he gets a job. He told me not to tell his mother when he's arriving as he wants me to meet him alone, and he'll see his mother the next day and tell her he just got home. His mother has been counting the days until his return, too, and I feel bad that she won't have the pleasure of knowing he's coming home. Should I tell her?

HIS GIRL FRIEND

DEAR GIRL FRIEND: Write and tell him to write his mother so you can both meet him. And bear in mind, a man rarely treats his wife any better than he treats his mother.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is, how do you say no to a guy you've been saying yes to for two years?

CINDY

DEAR CINDY: The same way you say no to anybody else. Only louder!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is not easy to answer, but I certainly wish you would help me. How does a respectable woman meet a decent man? (Object—matrimony.) I refuse to cheapen myself by going to bars alone and I don't want to get mixed up with any Lonely Hearts Clubs. I am getting tired of people asking me how come a nice woman like me isn't married.

READY, WILLING AND LONESOME

DEAR R. W. AND L.: Because your question is such a popular one I am going to try to help you and millions of other lonely people. I am inviting my readers (men and women) to write and tell me how they met their one and only. I'll print some of the more interesting letters in the hope they will be of some assistance.

DEAR ABBY: Let me be the first to join Irene's campaign against telephone solicitation. I work nights and need to get my rest during the day. I was awakened this afternoon by a man who told me he had heard that I was interested in buying "siding" for my home. Abby, I live in a basement dwelling. Now where would I put siding?

Jones-Woodward Vows Exchanged
In Wilkinson Road United Church

Cedar boughs and gladioli decorated Wilkinson Road United Church recently for the wedding of Shirley Rosina Woodward and William Charles Jones. Rev. E. J. Staley officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Woodward, 305 Cowichan Avenue, Lake Cowichan, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones, 3864 High Street.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride wore a bouffant length gown of sculptured Jaquard on satin from England with a rounded neckline and lily point sleeves. Fingert veil was held in place by a tiara of rhinestones and pearls.

Only jewelry was a pearl drop necklace with a diamond inset, gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. For "something old," the bride wore a 54-year-old bracelet, which belonged to her paternal grandmother.

Ballerina length dresses in shades of green, mauve and pink were worn by matron of honor Mrs. Jack Mather, Prince George; bridesmaid Miss Petelope Harder, Lake Cowichan, and bridesmatron Mrs. Jack Davis, Vancouver. Pink feathered canopies trimmed with ribbons to match their dresses formed their bouquets.

Best man was Jack Davis, Vancouver, and ushers were Maximilian Schoenfeldt and Gordon Munroe.

Baskets of pink gladioli and cedar boughs decorated the Sir William Wallace room of Holyrood House where the reception was held. Proposing the toast to the bride was Andy Olson, Lake Cowichan. Leaving for a honeymoon in Nevada and California, the bride wore a mint green linen boucle dress and coat ensemble with cinnamon-brown accessories and white rosebud corsage.

The newlyweds will live at No. 13, 340 Island Highway.

'Fascinating,' Says Lawyer Of City

By PAT DUFOR

If ever Jose M. Cachuela finds himself in need of a lawyer he won't have far to go. He married one two years ago. Both of them are from the Philippines, although Mr. Cachuela left there 32 years ago and his wife, Aurora, in 1960.

They met in San Diego, Calif., where they now live. Here on a visit with her husband, Aurora Cachuela finds Victoria "fascinating" and quickly tells you that this is the second time that she has visited the city.

Prior to her marriage, Aurora Cachuela indulged an "itchy foot" and visited Japan, Hawaii and much of the United States. Yet, she insists, that Canada tops them all.

The couple have two sons by Mr. Cachuela's first marriage, Jose, 21, and Larry, 19. And, it's with that aren't they-marvellous air of pride that Mrs. Cachuela shows pictures of her "good-looking boys."

Now an electronics technician at the naval base in San Diego, her husband spent 30 years in the American navy, ending up as a chief steward. On retirement, he went to college with the help of the GI Bill, and equipped himself for his new profession.

Although she practised law for eight years in her native Manila, Mrs. Cachuela must wait another year until she can become an American citizen in order to take her place in court.

Asked if there was any discrimination against women lawyers, she admitted that they weren't always greeted with rapture by their male counterparts.

"Some of them are convinced that the practise of law is a man's world and now and again some of them make pointed remarks in court, hinting that, if we can't make our point any other way, we can always rely on womanly tears."

"But," she adds, "it's a good feeling to be able to stand up to them and prove that we can argue as effectively as any man."

While she's waiting to practise again, Mrs. Cachuela keeps herself busy as an underwriter for a San Diego mortgage company.

Not that she's entirely cut off from legal affairs. An active member of the Business and Professional Women's Club, she heads their legislative committee and keeps an eagle eye on proposed new legislation, especially when it affects the field of welfare.

She and her husband visited the Seattle World's Fair before coming here, but Mrs. Cachuela was not overawed by it. "The most impressive thing was the Space Needle and I found it almost the same as the Tokyo Tower that I saw when I was in Japan. Still, the exhibits were good and we were lucky enough to be there for the Philippines Week."

"They had the Bayanhan folk dancers and the constabulary band from Manila. It was wonderful, too, to see my own country's fashions being modelled by girls from home. They brought along their own designers with them and wore the most beautiful ternos (kimono-like gowns that are in floor length and feature butterfly sleeves)."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cachuela are avid amateur photographers and when they return home there'll be pictures of the Parliament Buildings, Butchart Gardens and the Empress Hotel.

And to prove Mrs. Cachuela's ability to get things done, there'll be one of this camera-shy reporter, the taking of which resulted in the finishing of our interview in jig time!

DISCRIMINATION LESS IN B.C.

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—A survey among members of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs shows that women workers are being discriminated against in regards to both pay and pensions. Mrs. M. E. Pestrass of Cobourg, Ont., chairman of the employment conditions committee, said in an interview at the federation's 18th biennial meeting that the survey confirmed the federation's suspicions. She said the federation's provincial organizations must encourage women to protest against discrimination. Some clubs were considering inserting advertisements in newspapers to alert women of their rights to equal pay. Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Ontario showed the least discrimination.

Pupils in School District 63 in rural Saanich are expected to have 10 new elementary and two new secondary classrooms early in 1963.

Construction of four single room additions to existing elementary schools, two to Mount Newton Junior Secondary School, and two new three-room elementary schools is due to start in September.

The new schools will be located at Royal Oak Avenue and Lockside Drive, and at Durranee and West Saanich Roads.

It originally was expected that overcrowding would necessitate construction of 18 new classrooms by September, but this figure was revised "by further study."

The $285,000 by-law was approved by ratepayers in May.

Phil Lee's Two for the Show

(BB PLUS) "SERGEANTS THREE" (Odeon)—As this reviewer is not enamored of "the clan"—meaning Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford, Joey Bishop—as a clan even though he often enjoys them as individuals, he went to review United Artists' comedy-drama, "Sergeants 3," in a definitely biased mood.

The fact that W.R. Burnett's screen play was supposed to be based on Kipling's Gunga Din didn't help either as it was no secret that the plot was laid in the post-U.S. Civil War era and if Sammy Davis Jr. was to be Gunga better they should have drafted Amos 'n' Andy.

Because of these moody thoughts before entering the Odeon it may have been that Sergeants 3" turned out to seem better than it actually was through sheer surprise. It is fast-moving, often suspenseful, at odd times truly funny and although as far-fetched as the man-in-the-moon doing the Twist the picture does exude a certain overall charm.

In fact it was all we could do to refrain from awarding it an even higher rating.

The story is about three

Prowler Got $535

VANCOUVER (AP)—Mrs. F. G. Bell told police Monday a prowler stole $535 in cash from her home while she worked in her garden. The money was hidden in a yellow tin box with an elastic band around it. The box was concealed in a clothes closet, Mrs. Bell said.

'It Girl' Present at Funeral, Returns to Former Quiet Life

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A wave, a faint smile from the cupid's-bow lips, and Clara Bow lapsed back into the secluded life that has enveloped her for a dozen years.

She emerged Monday to attend the funeral of Rex Bell, whom she married in 1931 when both were screen stars. After the services, she returned to the small home in west Los Angeles where she has lived quietly for the last seven years.

Before that, she was in a sanitarium in Culver City, trying to conquer a nervous condition that plagued her as a result of long-time insomnia. "Clara always had trouble sleeping," recalls her one-time leading man and still a friend, Richard Arlen. "I made five or six pictures with her back in those Paramount days and I remember doing a lot of work at night." Clara, who had been the symbol of flaming youth in the 1920s, retired shortly after her marriage. She made a couple of pictures in the 1930s but wasn't happy. She retired once and for all to Nevada to be Mrs. Rex Bell and mother of their two sons.

But sleep still eluded her. Bell attributed her trouble to the high-strung decade when she was the nation's "It Girl." Since proper facilities were lacking in Nevada, she moved back to California while he and the sons visited her often. Her old-time pals from the studio days get handwritten Christmas cards from her every year. But their requests to visit her are politely turned down.

One thing is certain from having viewed her this week: The old Bow magic is still there. At 56, she is still a looker.

ROAST LOIN OF PORK

Score the fat. Insert garlic-bits, if liked. Season with salt and Malkin's pepper. Place on rack in roasting pan. Roast at 325° about 40 minutes per lb. (until fork is easily inserted into centre of meat). Or, insert a meat thermometer into the centre before roasting.

Inside-Out Tie Signal To Set Fire

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)

A necktie worn inside out was a signal to start fires in Nelson provincial jail, a witness told the court here Tuesday during the preliminary hearing into charges against 70 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

Cpl. Elliott Peever of the RCMP in Nelson said he was told by Freedomite prisoners in the jail that the backwards tie was a sign the wearer meant the opposite to everything he said.

Cpl. Peever said prisoners claimed the wearer of the tie was John Lebedoff, deposed leader of the Freedomites, who visited them shortly before the fires were set in June.

"They said he told them not to burn, but because he had his tie on inside out, they believed it was a sign to do the opposite," the RCMP officer said.

The corporal was a crown witness appearing on the 21st day of the preliminary hearing into charges of conspiring to intimidate the federal and provincial governments.

U.K. to Lead Common Market Says Editor

The United Kingdom will become leader of the European Common Market bloc—third largest power in the world—a Victoria editor told Victoria North Kiwanis Tuesday.

Colonist editor-in-chief Richard J. Bower, who was one of four editors who went from Canada to study ECM, said in his opinion Britain would gamble her sovereignty to either win leadership of the market bloc, or simply be a part of Europe.

The price would be high, he predicted, because Britain would have to support wages that would be threatened by a labor influx made possible with the free movement of workers in a common market setup.

But because the decision on joining must be made soon, Mr. Bower said it is unlikely this will be an election issue since the earliest likely polling will not be until next year.

MUTUAL DISTRUST

The editor pinned his opinion on two major factors:

1. There is mutual distrust among ECM countries.

2. Britain has an independent nuclear strike force.

Effect of the former would be to establish Britain in her traditional role as confidant to both Germany and France, who never see eye to eye.

The smaller countries of the Benelux group would see Britain as a stabilizer, for one thing reducing the likelihood of a West German pact with Communist East Germany, Mr. Bower said.

And the strike force, independent of the U.S., is considered a main line of European defence.

There is feeling, the editor said, that the U.S. may be neutral—rather than fly to the defence of a threatened Europe—as it was until later in both world wars.

Devaluation Rumor Noisy But Untrue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rumors published abroad about the possibility the U.S. dollar will be devalued have become "almost strident," Treasury Undersecretary Robert Roosa said Tuesday.

"I think it's because they see there is not a chance we will do it," Roosa added in testimony to the house banking committee. Under questioning, he said it is "clear that the principal gainer would be Russia" if dollars were cheapened in terms of gold so as to raise the price of the metal.

But Roosa said he was not suggesting that "all the people talking about devaluation do so to aid Russia."

Articles published on the subject in Britain have been especially speculative, Roosa said, suggesting some were "trying to create an atmosphere."

He repeated the long-standing assurance of the U.S. administration that the dollar will be held at its current relation to gold—$35 an ounce.

Reforms Ahead For Spaniards?

MADRID (AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco has designated Spain's highest ranking soldier as his official successor and shuffled his cabinet in a predicted prelude to political and economic reform.

Many experts here described the move as directed toward an early restoration of the monarchy in Spain.

By naming Capt. Gen. Augustin Munoz Grandes, 66, as vice-president the 69-year-old chief of state cleared up the long-pending question of who will succeed him if he dies.

Munoz Grandes has been chairman of the high military staff since 1957. Before that he was army minister for six years. He was secretary-general of the Falange party in 1939, and was an outstanding officer during the Spanish Civil War and Second World War.

Francisco's decree appointing Munoz Grandes to his official post as vice-president of the national council of ministers—in effect, deputy premier—said Munoz Grandes will continue to act as general commander of the high staff.

Seven new ministers were named in the first cabinet changes Franco had made since Feb. 25, 1957.

The changes were regarded as based on Franco's desire to strengthen the council of ministers and not resulting from any crisis.

Army, navy and air ministries were changed, as were industry, labor, education and information-tourism.

One government observer said: "It looks like the monarchists, the church and the army all came out substantially ahead at the expense of the right-wing Falangists. All in all, it looks like Franco is clearing the decks for progress—political as well as economic."

The old-line Falangists lost three civilian posts. There appeared to be a clear gain in prestige for the Catholic Action Group and the Roman Catholic Church.

Manuel Lora Tamayo, the new minister of education, and Manuel Fraja Iribarren, new minister for information-tourism, are considered strong Catholic Action supporters.

Lora Tamayo is a noted chemist, vice rector of the University of Madrid, and head of various research associations.

Fraja Iribarren, 40, a sociologist, heads a number of cultural and social welfare groups, including the Institute for Political Studies. He is considered pro-monarchist.

Fraja Iribarren succeeds Gabriel Arias Salgado, a veteran Conservative cabinet member blamed by Spanish publishers for strict internal censorship and barriers to a free press.

City Firm Wins Timber Contract

A two-year fight—which had reverberations in the House of Commons—by Beaufort Industries Ltd. of Victoria to secure a timber contract in the Tsimpsan Indian reserve north of Prince Rupert has been won by the local company.

Citizenship Minister Fairclough announced in Ottawa Wednesday that the $1,470,268 Beaufort bid had been accepted by the government and approved by the Indian band.

The Tsimpsan timber had originally been awarded to Shoreline Lumber Company of Vancouver which bid $792,000 for a smaller acreage. This contract was later withdrawn by the government after Liberal MP Judy LaMarsh revealed in the Commons that there had been irregularities in the award.

The Indians were strongly in favor of the Beaufort bid which covered a larger area and provided them with more benefits.

In addition to the timber contract, Beaufort is committed to building a road through the reserve, to a reforestation scheme using Indian workers and to a $200,000 payment over 10 years for Indian affairs branch personnel to direct a rehabilitation and training program on the reserve.

ENTHUSIASTIC HUG from fiancée, Friederike Bernhardt of Munich, was reward for Florida film producer Fred Baldasare today after he emerged from water at Sandwich Bay on England's south coast after swimming under water from Calais, France, across English Channel.—(AP Wirephoto.)

AFTER TWO YEARS' EFFORT Channel Swim Made Underwater

DOVER, England (AP) — Fred Baldasare, 38, a Florida film producer, made history of sorts today by completing an English Channel swim from Calais to Sandwich Bay under water.

Bruised and weary, Baldasare trudged ashore on the English side 18 hours and one minute after setting off from France guided by a marker 15 feet beneath the surface. The marker was towed by a motor boat and Baldasare, in a frogman's suit, breathed from oxygen tanks.

The distance from Calais to England is 22 miles as the crow flies, but gales and tides carried Baldasare far off course. It was reckoned he covered about twice that distance.

Baldasare, the first person to swim the channel under water, said:

"I have given up two years of my life to do this and it has cost me $35,000. My life savings are gone.

"Having achieved my ambition, I now want to get back into film producing. I will do documentaries and also hope to direct a drama about underwater channel swimming."

Baldasare carried lead weights to keep him down. A relay of French frogmen changed his air tanks during the crossing.

Tiny Orbiting Telstar In Triumphant Baptism

(See Page 30)

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK (AP) — Telstar, the communications satellite, orbited in space today on its pioneering mission to bring the world a new voice, ears and eyes.

In triumphant baptism Tuesday night, it sent television pictures spanning the Atlantic to France and England. It relayed a telephone call from Maine to Vice-President Johnson in Washington as loud and clear as the best of local calls.

Then for an encore, the versatile Telstar — only a yard wide — simultaneously transmitted news stories at a 1,000-word-a-minute clip, relayed photographs perfectly, and supplied two-way telephone calls with perfect aplomb from a 3,000-mile height in space.

Remarkably clear TV pictures were received in France, and were to be relayed by tape into French homes today.

French TV officials planned to beam a return program to the United States late tonight or early Thursday French time, which is five hours ahead of EDT.

A Paris dispatch said this would include a song by Yves Montand, several views of Paris, and a message from Jacques Mallet, French communications minister.

In Britain, faint and fleeting pictures were picked up as Telstar received, amplified and retransmitted the program beamed into space from a powerful horn antenna in the little town of Andover, Me. The first telecast via space opened with a view of the American flag rippling in the breeze.

Telstar's first feats were a prodigious demonstration of things to come in a future worldwide satellite communications system to meet mounting demands for telephone, news, business, and TV circuits spanning oceans and continents.

Praising this joint venture of private industry and government — American Telephone and Telegraph Company footed the $4,000,000 cost of building, launching and tracking Telstar — Newton M. Proulx, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission remarked:

"Now we have increased opportunity to increase the flow of information between all nations, to surmount the walls of ignorance and prejudice and to avoid mass destruction."

Thieves Get Huge Haul In Art

LONDON (Reuters) — Thieves stole 35 paintings valued at nearly $1,200,000 from an art gallery in London's swank Mayfair district during the night.

It was believed to be Britain's biggest art theft.

Renowned works by Picasso, Monet, Toulouse-Lautrec and Bonnard.

Police said thieves scaled roofs and forced a fire escape door leading to the O'Hana Art Gallery.

Jacques O'Hana, owner of the gallery that specializes in modern and impressionist works, estimated the value of the stolen paintings at nearly £400,000.

Within hours all air and seaports had been placed on the alert to prevent the thieves from taking the masterpieces out of Britain.

Interpol, the international police organization, also was asked to help.

The insurers offered a reward of £20,000 for the return of the paintings — 10 per cent of their insured value.

GOYA STILL MISSING

It was the biggest art theft in England since the theft of a Goya portrait of the Duke of Wellington from the National Gallery last August.

The Goya, valued at £140,000, still is missing.

London has had a wave of art thefts in recent months. A Renoir and two Picassos were among 12 paintings stolen last May. Eleven of the paintings were recovered a week afterward.

The O'Hana Gallery was the scene of a theft four years ago when a Renoir miniature, La Promenade, was removed from its frame and replaced with a colored print of the Madonna and Child.

In the last 12 months the total value of stolen paintings in Europe and the United States has been at least $2,800,000.

The paintings stolen today were part of the gallery's annual summer exhibition.

BEN BELLA RETURNS TO CHEERS OF PEOPLE

ALGIERS (AP) — Dissident deputy premier Ahmed Ben Bella, flanked by high officers of the National Liberation Army, entered western Algeria today and received acclaim from thousands of shouting Moslems.

Ben Bella then set out on what apparently is intended as a procession of popular triumph toward Algiers — to the discomfort of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda with whom he has been at odds.

Ben Bella first entered his birthplace of Marnia, a town of about 12,000 six miles east of the Moroccan border.

Moslem women, in their best tribal dress, banged tambourines and clicked castanets, thousands of spectators shouted and cheered as the caravan of 30 cars sped under banners proclaiming "Long Live Ben Bella."

REACH ACCORD

Moslem Chiefs Avert Clash

OUJDA, Morocco (Reuters) — The opposing sides in Algeria's Moslem nationalist leadership have reached agreement on ending their split menacing the newly independent country, it was reported today.

The Moroccan news agency first announced the agreement between dissident Algerian leader Mohammed Ben Bella and the Algerian provisional government of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda, hammered out at talks in the Moroccan capital of Rabat.

MUST BE APPROVED

The Moroccan news agency Maghreb Arab Press said the agreement will be submitted for approval to a meeting of Algerian military leaders.

It said the two sides negotiating at Rabat had agreed not to make any statements which could lead to a worsening of the situation.

The agency was quoting sources which it described as close to the two groups. It gave no details of the agreement.

Its story and the confirmation dispelled pessimism resulting from earlier reports that the Rabat reconciliation talks had broken down.

Dr. William Anderson, head of the integration Albany movement, claimed to have 24,000 Negroes ready to go to jail in protest against the rigid segregation practices of this south Georgia industrial city of 60,000.

Police chief Laurie Pritchett, at the head of a patrol, met the Negroes as they started out of an all-Negro neighborhood and asked them to disperse.

When they quietly refused, he ordered them arrested for blocking traffic and parading without a permit — the same charges that sent King to jail for 45 days Tuesday.

The source declined to disclose how many Indian troops were surrounded but termed the Chinese action "a most serious provocation."

At the same time, China sent its second protest note in two days, charging India with border intrusions along the disputed frontier.

The New China News Agency said the note was sent Tuesday. India, it charged, has set up four new military strong-points in China's Sikkim region and another in Tibet as a prelude to "armed invasion."

RADIO CONTACT

Informed sources said the Indian garrison still was in radio contact with army headquarters, but since the Chinese encirclement was complete, it would be difficult to supply the outpost by land.

There are no roads in the area of the outpost. Sources said the Chinese appeared to be using pack animals for transport.

The tourists quickly returned to their bus and drove off.

Towns Evacuated As Rivers Climb In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Several towns on the northern New South Wales coast, lashed by a cyclone during the last few days, were partly evacuated today when swollen rivers overflowed into the streets.

In Lismore, 100 miles south of the Queensland border on the Richmond River, 250 persons were evacuated as flood waters seven feet deep raced through the business area.

Lloyd to Meet KOD Delegation

REGINA (CP) — Premier Woodrow Lloyd agreed to meet a delegation from the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee today as crowds began streaming into the legislative grounds for a mass protest rally against the controversial medical care insurance plan.

The meeting was scheduled to be held sometime during the afternoon. Meanwhile, the Saskatchewan cabinet also went into session.

Less than an hour before start of the rally, highways into the provincial capital were closed with cars coming from many directions.

On the main Highway 11, lined up 30 yards apart in a steady stream for more than 10 miles from the city. There was one contingent alone of 165 cars from Prince Albert.

1,500 on Hand With 20 Minutes to Go

By 1:40 p.m. CST, the crowd on the grounds had swollen to more than 1,500.

A growing parade of men, women and children of all ages, including babies pushed in prams, circled the driveway in front of the buildings.

It was a good-natured crowd. They displayed signs proclaiming: "We Object — Yorkton," "The Plan Must Satisfy All," "Suspend Medicare Now."

Government employees were directing traffic away from the front of the building. Snow fences were set up around the flower beds.

At Davidson, 80 miles south of Saskatoon, nine out of 10 cars on southbound highway carried window stickers claiming support for doctors in their opposition to the government plan.

The Saskatoon Keep-Our-Doctors Committee had originally forecast that a 700-car cavalcade would form for the 167-mile trip to Regina. But the cavalcade failed to form. It appeared that motorists preferred to travel singly instead of in a group.

Committee members handed out pro-doctor stickers and pennants on the outskirts of Saskatoon but not all motorists accepted the material. It was not known how many cars had left Saskatoon.

The cavalcade today is backed by businessmen and city and town councils throughout the province. It seeks suspension of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act that went into operation July 1, resulting in withdrawal of normal medical service by most of the 700 practising doctors in the province.

Want General Election If No Action

The first two cavalcades, number 112 and 350 cars respectively, sought by petition to delay the plan until agreement between the government and the doctors could be reached.

This one "demands" suspension of the act, followed by return of the doctors to normal practice. If the government does not suspend the act, the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee seeks dissolution of the legislature and a general election.

Labor groups, which under the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor have supported the government's compulsory medical care plan, are not planning any counter demonstration.

Mr. Lloyd refused to meet the June 15 cavalcade, but did meet the cavalcade two weeks earlier when he urged calmness and asked the doctors to give the medical care plan a trial.

Meanwhile, nine more doctors arrived by air from England Tuesday night to bolster Saskatchewan's medical service.

They were the first of more than 30 United Kingdom doctors expected by Saturday.

They are being brought by the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission. A group of clergyment representing United, Anglican and Roman Catholic churches, which has met with both government and doctors, said Tuesday they failed to bring the two sides together for a settlement.

NURSES BACK DOCTORS

REGINA (CP) — Nearly 260 Regina nurses Tuesday voted full support of Saskatchewan's doctors in the medical care dispute, and urged the medical care act be suspended.

Two hundred of the nurses at a special meeting signed their names to a petition to this effect.

The registered nurses passed a resolution calling for "wholehearted support" of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, warning of a "complete breakdown in nursing services" if the medical care plan continues.

The resolution said that nursing education is suffering a serious setback, it urged negotiations between doctors and government be resumed "immediately" to stop the exodus of doctors and nurses from the province.

NOISE MAKERS DISTURB ANTI-NOISE CAMPAIGN

SAN-REMO, Italy (AP) — An anti-noise convention meeting got off to a noisy start Tuesday.

Sixty delegates who gathered to discuss the problems of noise abatement could scarcely hear themselves talk for all the racket. Repairmen outside were breaking up the street with air hammers.

Centennial Flashback

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

JULY 11

Arrival of a supply of cement from San Francisco, to be used to construct the tank at the gas house, encourages the belief that the town will be lighted by gas within two months. All the posts for street lamps are at the works and will be placed in position shortly.

The yacht Kelpie, winner of the Queen's Cup at Nanaimo, was offered for sale for $300.

There was great excitement last night when the fire bell was rung very loudly. The engines were rolled out, and crowds turned out of houses, barsrooms and hotels, rushing wildly along Government Street to Humboldt. Unfortunately the firemen did not get a chance to show their skill as there was no fire. It is not known who rang the bell.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Sign we like, in the window of the Jubilee Coffee Shop: Our coffee, your time, get along fine.

The CPR's Princesses on the Victoria-Seattle run are due for a bit of publicity via a "queen."

She's Mrs. Hollie Fifer, 934 Hilgard Avenue, Los Angeles, who acquired her crown and a trailerful of gifts by becoming "Queen for a Day" on the TV program of that name.

She won the honor on the June 29 program. As the last in her long list of prizes, Mrs. Fifer was awarded a trip by Princess steamer from Seattle to Victoria. She and her husband will visit here next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Her gifts included furniture, appliances, books, and a complete wardrobe—but she wasn't the only one to benefit. At her request, the sponsors of the show also presented an air-conditioner to the Los Angeles Braille Institute for the Blind, where she is employed.

Since the Times ran a story about Bob Hope coming here (yes, it's NEXT Monday), Ron Worley has been swamped with calls from Hopeful helpers.

He's been offered a boat for the Hopes to go fishing, a private plane, a car, and free candy for the Hope family from a local merchant.

Ron took a trip to Salt Spring Island last weekend with his boss, Premier Bennett. It was to show off the lot he bought for the premier this spring. Ron bought it, then sold it to the chief sight unseen; fortunately it was just what he wanted. "But I kept the cheque in my pocket just in case," said Ron.

If you have an old copy of "Father, Dear Father, Come Home" (written by the late Sir John Galsworthy), the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. is looking for it.

To assist in research work, the foundation wants booklets, pamphlets, and campaign leaflets of the anti-alcoholism and temperance movements in Canada and the U.S. For instance, works of Frances E. Willard and books such as "The Temperance Entertainer" and "Temperance Reader" are sought. So, if you have any anti-temperance literature lying around, ship it off to the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., 1960 Broadway, Include your name and address so acknowledgment can be made. Cheers!

Former Mayor Percy Scurrell is wearing in his coat lapel a new pin inscribed "Past President, Mayors of Canada" and bearing an inset map of Canada in green enamel. There's only one thing wrong with the map: No Vancouver Island!

A couple of sightseers from California, armed with formidable-looking movie cameras and determined expressions, approached this reporter on Tuesday afternoon, requiring directions to "Butcher's Garden." Having been given the lowdown on Butcher's Gardens, their eyebrows lifted as they walked off, muttering: "and we thought they were made by the meat-cutters' union!"

New Rotary president Frank Norton is getting a severe indoctrination in the matter of visiting brass. Next Thursday he hosts the immediate past president of Rotary International, Joe Abbey. A newspaper circulator, Abbey is bringing with him to Victoria 18 carrier boys who won a trip to the Seattle World's Fair.

Yesterday, Norton received word that the current RI president will be in town Aug. 13 and Frank is busily trying to round up an all-island meeting. This is the first Asian president of Rotary, Nitish Laharry. He's from India, where he was a top film distributor.

Never say die... native Victorian Harold Wilson, 4215 Cedar Hill Road, has had a "bug" about the old home town's 100th year festivities. He thinks they should have been pushed more, and early in the year went to see Mayor Wilson with his thoughts.

Why not a car bumper card to be fixed to as many tourist cars as possible, as well as local autos, was one of his suggestions.

He has made regular calls to the Centennial office over the months, nagging the organizers for such a card. And the other day they came through.

Into the Times office rushed Wilson with a bright red lettered, black background celebration booster he had just received on his latest call to the Centennial headquarters. "Please tell everyone about it," he pleaded. "It's still not too late to get behind the birthday effort."

$40,000 B.C. Grant Asked To Help Build Gorge Bridge

Saanich and Esquimalt will ask the B.C. government to share the cost of constructing a new and enlarged $80,000 bridge across the Gorge at Puffinham Road.

Representatives of both councils discussed the need for a new span at a Saanich public works committee meeting Tuesday.

The department of highways will be asked to contribute $40,000 towards the project.

The remaining $40,000 would be shared equally by the two municipalities.

Councils will also request the preparation of a new bridge design to cope with future traffic needs.

The municipalities want construction to start next year.

Two years ago Saanich and Esquimalt agreed to improve the bridge at a cost of $20,000. But this figure has now been increased to $80,000 because the present design is inadequate to handle steadily increasing traffic.

Talks aimed at staving off a strike in the B.C. construction industry this summer lasted until late Tuesday and continued again today in Vancouver without sign of settlement.

Carpenters' and plumbers' unions outside of Greater Victoria have voted to strike in support of 1962-63 contract demands.

In last-minute efforts to prevent a walkout which would seriously hamper an otherwise prosperous construction season, both unions agreed to further bargaining discussions suggested by conciliation officers.

Greater Victoria union members are not affected in the negotiations having settled their own contracts for this year and next with local contractors.

Only if a strike is called could workers on certain jobs being done here by Vancouver contractors be affected.

Churchill Makes 'Good Progress'

LONDON (AP)—Despite complications, Sir Winston Churchill apparently is making such good progress that his doctors decided today to skip further medical bulletins until Friday.

An afternoon bulletin said Churchill is "making satisfactory progress and there is nothing further to report." Then the doctors disclosed that there will be no more bulletins until Friday.

Churchill this morning checked the racing news in London papers after watching a movie from his hospital bed Tuesday night.

The 87-year-old wartime prime minister, whose recovery from a thigh bone fracture has been complicated by a blood clot in the leg, spent a comfortable night, Middlesex Hospital officials said.

Hospital officials said Churchill was especially interested in the morning newspapers because his horse Novitate was to run at Salisbury later in the day.

The blood clot condition, or thrombosis, was disclosed for the first time in Tuesday's medical bulletin and indicated that if he had been present with the phlebitis he has been suffering since Saturday. Phlebitis is a more general term covering inflammation of a vein.

FIVE CHILDREN DROWN AT RESORT BEACH

'Like Fishermen Pulling Fish Out of the Water'

LONG POINT BEACH, Ont. (CP)—Jayne Patricia Williams, 11, ran over to two passing friends Tuesday to give them her ring so that it would not get wet.

She went back to the water's edge at this Lake Erie beach, where her brother and sister and two other Hamilton children were playing.

About an hour later all five children were found drowned. They were caught 20 yards from shore by a strong undertow, which develops in strong winds. They were playing alone and no one witnessed the accident.

Dead are Jayne, her sister Catherine, 8, and brother Harold Thomas, 9, Robert Ellis, 9, and Kenneth Walchuck, 10.

Coroner Dr. D. A. Archibald said there has been no decision on an inquest.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Williams brought their three children on Saturday to this vacationing spot, on a narrow peninsula about 75 miles southwest of Hamilton, for a week-long holiday. With the children was their cousin, Kenneth Walchuck. Robert, a friend, joined them Tuesday.

The children went to the beach 300 yards from the Williams' home.

Mrs. Suzanne Walters of Tonawanda, N.Y., camping in the area with her husband and eight children, spotted the first body about 3:30 p.m.

"It was the most unbelievable thing I ever saw," she said.

Swimmers formed human chains after she gave the alarm.

"It was like fishermen pulling fish out of the water as the human chain moved slowly through the water," she said.

"But they weren't fish. They were little boys and girls and I felt like sobbing as I hugged my own small children."

"I had been wading in shallow water close to shore when I spotted him farther out. He seemed like a small boy to be swimming so far out and with his head down in the water, too."

Then I realized that he couldn't hold his breath that long and wasn't moving. A chill ran down my spine."

Two doctors, two nurses, firemen, police and vacationers tried for more than two hours to revive the children.

U.S. Closes Canadian Radar Units

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States defence department said today that during the last 12 months it closed down nine U.S. radar stations in Canada, including three major stations in the Canadian north and six so-called gap fillers forming part of the Distant Early Warning radar system.

Normally, the gap fillers are described as "unmanned" but the department said five of the six fillers were actually "air stations" with about 25 men at each station.

The Canadian installations, costing more than $20,000,000, were closed because of extension of the D.E.W. radar line both west and east, producing some overlapping in this radar fence. The affected Canadian stations were along the east coast, from the Arctic down to Newfoundland.

Last year, the D.E.W. line was extended east to Greenland and northwest to the Aleutian Islands.

More 'Ifs' and 'Buts' Than Ever

Economic forecasters notoriously are not given to making definite statements about the future.

And with the present confused political and economic situation in Canada, the utterances of the "things will be better if they do not get worse" school are even more hedged about with "ifs" and "buts" than usual.

Here are a few samples culled at random during the past couple of days:

"The pace is good but not as good as expected. However, if it continues at its present rate conditions will be reasonably satisfactory. But if we enter another recession from our present situation, the problems may be more troublesome than in past recessions."

Or: "On balance the spring months seem to have witnessed a continuation of the mild business expansion... but leading business cycle indicators have shown little if any strength."

"Annual forecasts made six months ago indicated that 1962 would result in appreciable economic gains. At present it now generally appears that the forecasts will not be fully attained, although 1962's gross national product should be a substantially over last year's..."

the outlook for the economy over the next few months is difficult to chart statistically. Nevertheless, the country's prospects are favorable and based on a firm foundation."

The lowered margin requirements announced by the U.S. federal reserve board Monday—down from 70 to 50 per cent—had a stimulating effect on U.S. stock exchanges which spilled over strongly to Canadian exchanges.

However, it would be difficult to find any investment man around these parts willing to guarantee that the rally will be long-sustained.

They point to the fact that in the five previous times that margins have been cut the stock market surge has lasted from six to 16 days before returning to the trend prevailing before the cut.

Margin changes have never by themselves produced a change in the trend although there is some evidence that they have preceded by three to six months a reverse in the market.

MONETARY EXPERT DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Owen D. Young, 87, industrialist and international monetary expert, died today at his home at St. Augustine, Fla. He had been ill several weeks.

The spokesman, a Council of Forest Industries official, said, however, that it was too early to assess the effect of the move on Canadian trade with Australia in lumber items.

The new quotas limit imports on the two products to 25 per cent of the amount imported in the two years ended June 30.

AUSTRALIAN RESTRICTIONS IRK MILLMEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for B.C.'s forest industry expressed dissatisfaction Tuesday with quotas imposed by Australia on imports of U.S. and Canadian Douglas fir and hemlock lumber for the rest of 1962.

Decision Soon On Terminal For Airport

'Very Strong Case' Claims Chatterton

It will be two to three weeks before a final decision from Ottawa on a go-ahead this year for a new terminal at Patricia Bay airport, MP George Chatterton said today.

The Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative MP has just returned from a four-day trip to Ottawa where he requested action on a number of local works projects.

Mr. Chatterton said the federal treasury board will decide if the airport terminal goes ahead.

If the word is yes, tenders would be called immediately, he said.

'STRONG CASE'

"I think we have a very strong case," said Mr. Chatterton.

The government was already morally and legally committed to the project.

One of the commitments is handing over the present terminal hangar to Fairley Aviation Ltd., which has already bought it for expanding its Pat Bay plant.

Mr. Chatterton said one indication of the government's intent to go ahead with the project is that work on an apron for aircraft at the new terminal site has been resumed after a one-day halt when the new Ottawa austerity program was announced last month.

Mr. Chatterton said he also asked federal officials to provide road access to East Saanich Road.

Present plans are for a new road from the terminal to Pat Bay Highway to replace Willington Road, which will be closed. There are no plans for a link to East Saanich Road. Mr. Chatterton said it would be needed by Victoria Flying Services, the navy and for fire protection purposes.

$14,000 GRANT

He said he was successful in securing treasury board approval for another local project—a $14,000 grant toward cold storage facilities for Saanich Fruit Growers Association.

He said the new plant will allow local farmers to compete with U.S. frozen food markets.

Mr. Chatterton also asked the government to consider a $5,000 grant to North and South Saanich Agricultural Association for rewiring show buildings.

The rewiring was necessary to avoid a condemnation order.

The association has not yet applied for the money, but will do so shortly, said Mr. Chatterton.

Hydro Staff Voting On Union

Fifteen hundred B.C. Hydro office employees are voting today on whether to join a trade union.

The vote is being run by the B.C. Labor Relations Board in Victoria and Vancouver offices of B.C. Hydro.

It follows an application for certification to the board from the Office Employees' International Union.

The union formerly represented B.C. Electric employees. Before B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission were merged this year there was no official union representation for the commission's office workers.

They had a private association in Victoria which dealt on an unofficial basis with the management.

Members of this association complained earlier this year the Office Employees' International was trying to force them to join.

The union then made a formal application to the Labor board appointed chief conciliator officer Reg. Clements as returning officer for today's vote.

Mr. Clements said results will be given to the board, which will then decide if the union should be allowed in.

JAMES BAY RESIDENTS MOUNT OFFENSIVE AGAINST PRECINCT

James Bay property owners are expected to turn out at a city council meeting Thursday loaded for bear.

Protest letters began arriving at City Hall today opposing a bylaw which would rezone a large area around the Parliament Buildings, freezing properties to their present uses.

Many will deliver their protests in person at a public hearing preceding the council meeting on the Parliament Building Precinct.

Four identical letters, signed by different property owners, said the precinct would only devalue property and create a bigger traffic problem.

WHO SAYS WE'RE FULL?

'Friends' Impede Flow of Tourists

Victoria's "friends" in Seattle are informing world's fair tourists that there is no accommodation available here, Ald. Michael Griffin told a meeting of sightseeing operators Tuesday night.

Chairman of the city traffic committee, he told the meeting that some Government Street operators are suffering a downturn in business this year and feel that sightseeing operators monopolize tourists that arrive for only a few hours visit.

"A factor compounding this problem is that some of our good friends in the U.S.—I don't know if it's a conspiracy—are telling tourists there is no accommodation here," he said.

"So the tourists are just coming over for the afternoon."

"In actual fact, of course, there is no shortage of accommodation and we have an excellent setup in our expediting. But we just can't seem to get that message across."

The 2½-hour meeting, called to iron out differences between sightseeing operators and merchants and also discuss changes in curbside stands in the Causeway area, was held in City Hall.

It wound up with agreement by sightseeing operators to use the city's Corner Street parking lot as an unloading terminal for all sightseeing tours possible.

'Give the Merchants a Chance'

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, who proposed the step, said this would give tourists opportunity to range through the downtown area on the way back to the Inner Harbor ferry docks.

"We are lucky in all the business we are getting this year and the only question is how do we get the most out of it," he said. "If the bus tours deposited tourists in town it would give the merchants a chance."

Ald. Millard Mooney backed the proposal contending the "merchants have a legitimate beef" because they provide a major share in taxes of the city's $54,000 grant to the publicity bureau which is aimed at bringing tourist business here.

Taxi operator James Gorst sounded a warning that the parking lot terminal would not work.

"I think this meeting is trying to extract the golden egg from the goose that isn't going to lay," he said.

"I don't think the average tourist is going to be too concerned about shopping at 4 p.m. when there are 2,000 others jostling in line already to get a seat on the boat."

"They come here now to see the scenery, not to shop."

One Space Per Firm Opposed

Along with agreement to try the terminal unloading plan, the sightseeing operators agreed to a number of minor changes in curbside space allocations at the Causeway for soliciting and loading sightseeing vehicles.

But they expressed solid opposition to a retail merchants group suggestion that each company be limited to one bus space in the Causeway area.

They also turned thumbs down on a statement that Police Chief John Blackstock felt all sightseeing companies should be banned from free curbside stands and provide their own off-street parking.

"That would be the death-knell of sightseeing in Victoria," said Tallyho operator Arthur Knap.

Mr. Gorst also warned that a single company was able to monopolize sightseeing in Vancouver after curbside stands were eliminated because smaller and independent operators were forced out of business.

Hat-Trick Possible At Revolver Meet?

Apart from the noise, the most outstanding feature of Victoria City Police Revolver Club's annual tournament which opened today is the variety of headgear.

Hats on the firing line today ranged from a smart Stetson to a ragged Sombrero, and one sharpshooter added a little dignity to the occasion in a sombre black bowler.

It is doubtful, however, whether the exotic hats have any beneficial effect on the match scores.

"It's a bare-headed contest," a bare-headed contestant explained.

OLDEST MEET

The tournament—oldest continuous meet on the Pacific coast—is being held today and Thursday at the revolver range in picturesque Thetis Lake Park.

A record 60 entries have turned up for this, the 43rd annual shoot.

Besides the city police, teams from Vancouver, Spokane, U.S. Army, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Border Patrol, Saanich police, Oak Bay police and the RCMP are competing.

Marksmen from as far east as Winnipeg and as north as Alaska make up the ranks of individual competitors.

SIX MATCHES

Most of today's competition—six matches all told—was for individual prize money and target pistols.

Team competition with service issue arms will take place on Thursday.

A novel match open to mayors, aldermen, councillors, reeves and chiefs of police of any municipality will be held on Thursday afternoon.

The tournament winds up with an awards dinner and dance at the Chez Marcel Thursday evening.

Causeway Sign For Centennial

Victoria Centennial Celebration Society today asked City Hall to put up a message on The Causeway overhead banner lights promoting the centenary.

Commission Prodded By Merchants

Ald. Michael Griffin today indicated a $700,000 project to put up a 400-car parking garage on View Street likely will be underway by the end of the month.

He is chairman of the city's parking commission which met this morning with about 25 downtown businessmen and was told that merchants were anxious for a quick start on the project.

"I expect we will recommend to tomorrow's council meeting that tenders be called in a week to 10 days for construction of the View Street project," he said after the meeting.

The tenders would be returnable in two weeks with the successful bidder expected to start demolition of the site immediately and proceed with construction of the four-storey building.

Tender call for the proposed 200-car garage on Yates at Langley is not expected for three or four months because of difficulties encountered in re-establishing one of the firms that would have to move.

BY NOV. 1

"However there was a development last night which brightened the picture on the Langley project," he said. "We are more hopeful now than we were yesterday but I still can't reveal the details."

If present plans proceed, the View Street garage should be ready for operation by Nov. 1 and the Langley garage by late winter," he said. A real estate board appraisal of the View Street site said property acquisition should cost $217,500 while construction estimate is $480,000. This would give the city a $22,500 buffer under its original estimate of $730,000 for the project.

WELL BELOW

Similarly, a parking commission "estimate" on property acquisition and a construction estimate produces a total projection of $314,000 for the Langley garage—well below the original $385,000 allowance.

If all the estimates prove correct, both garages will cost $1,027,000 compared with a $1,115,000 authorized by downtown ratepayers in a bylaw vote last year.

The parking commission was left in no doubt that merchants are worried about frequent delays in starting the parking projects.

NO MORE DELAYS

The 700 Block Yates Street Association, in a letter, said: "The members are becoming increasingly worried regarding the delay in the erection of the parking facility planned for View Street and lower Yates Street."

"As the merchants in this block supported this project wholeheartedly, together with over 60 per cent of the downtown property owners, we feel that the city should proceed with building without any further delay."

SHOULD THEY MOVE?

The letter pointed out that street canopies were built on the block by merchants on the understanding that the parking projects would be carried out.

'GO ANYWHERE' BOAT POPULAR WITH OCEAN WANDERERS

For the man who wants to go cruising, come hail or high winds, owner Ted Perkins of Los Angeles recommends a trawler-type craft such as his 65-foot Tiki. Built in Norway, hull design is identical with fishing craft which ply North Atlantic in all kinds of weather; on her way here from California, Tiki proved her worth by taking seas over the wheelhouse without "much discomfort" to those aboard. About a dozen of this type are now operating as pleasurecraft out of California ports.

MONTE ROBERTS

It's rude to read other people's mail, but . . .

Dear Mary Jean:
Oh, dear, you must think I'm awful, not even sending you a postcard since we left L.A. but we've been so busy busy and I'll try to make up for it by writing you a whole letter.

Well here we are in Victoria, Canada, which is that big red mark on the map between us and the Russians.

And, Mary Jean, do you know, we love it so much here, we would like to stay forever.

Just today we were down at a place called the Causeway, and my, you never saw so much fun and excitement! Just like Fishermen's Wharf, up there in San Fran, but without the fish. You know, water and low tide and people all walking around and about, taking pictures of each other.

And then there were those sweet, sweet, sightseeing drivers, each of them with a cute gimmick proving HIS sightseeing ride was better than the OTHER GUY's sightseeing ride. Mary Jean, you'd swear you were back in L.A. trying to decide which "See the homes of the stars" tour you'd take.

We went on one of the tours, and it was wonderful. Mind you, the people in Victoria are just a WEE bit backward, there are still a few trees left. But they are doing the best they can, and are putting up some really tall apartments to block out the view.

And you have to hand it to their city street departments. They have a most intriguing assortment of "closed to traffic" signs, just like on South Mair or Hollywood Boulevard. Mind you, the Victoria people don't have a freeway yet, but they have a thing called the "Roundabout" which is just as confusing.

The drivers here aren't as fast as in L.A., but they make as much noise with their horns and exhausts, and are far more unpredictable, which really makes for more fun, don't you think?

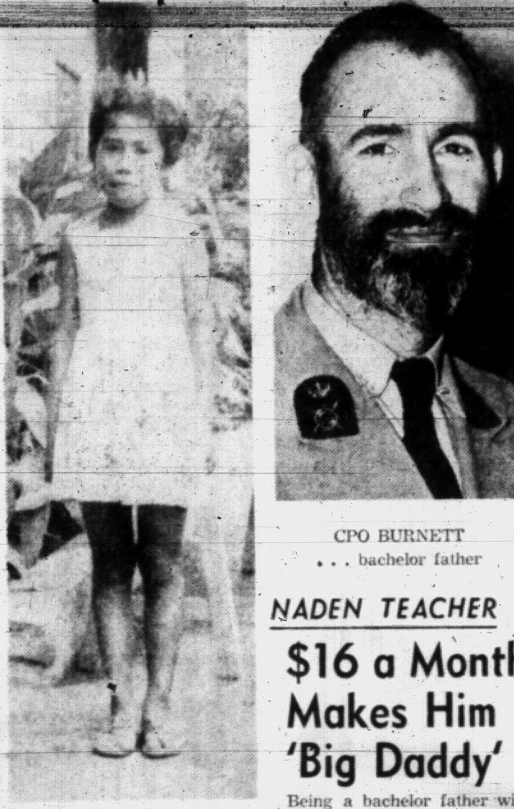

There's one thing here which isn't quite up to L.A. or San Fran standards, though. That's the smog. You have to go to certain sections of the city to find smog, but once you know your way around, it's really no trouble at all.

These are lots of flashing advertising signs, too, and no left turn, don't stop, don't go, don't park, don't drive signs, so we really feel right at home here.

But it's back at the Causeway, that I started to tell you about, you really feel at home—people handing you leaflets and pamphlets and walking around with ads for eateries. We were just about ready to settle down here when we heard Victoria is actually a Little Bit of Old England—and you know Fred, he can't STAND anything English, his folks come from Ireland.

So I guess we'll be coming back to L.A., after all. Fred says this is a wonderful place to visit, but

NADEN TEACHER

$16 a Month Makes Him 'Big Daddy'

Being a bachelor father with an "adopted" daughter whom he has never seen has proved a rewarding experience for CPO F. G. Burnett, an electronics teacher at the Naval Technical School, HMCS Naden.

Last October, CPO Burnett became interested in the Foster Parents' plan, which provides cash, food, clothing and medical care for needy children in foreign lands. He was especially touched by the plight of little Regina Corrales, 9, of Manila, in the Philippine Islands, and agreed to "adopt" her by paying $16 a month into the Foster Parents plan.

ONE OF SEVEN

Regina is one of seven children of a widowed mother who, when Burnett stepped in, was trying to feed her family on 37 cents a day.

"Regina's mother writes regularly," he said today. "Every letter is a little more optimistic. I am happy I decided to join the plan."

A bachelor, Burnett said he just decided to become a foster parent because he thought it would be interesting to see what his contributions could do.

"They seem to have helped," he said.

He has never been in the Philippines, but hopes that some day there'll be a navy cruise in that area—with him aboard.

Worldwide interest in park problems was stressed by Dr. David B. Turner, deputy minister of parks and recreation, who returned this week from representing British Columbia at the First World Conference of National Parks in Seattle.

The purpose of the conference was to exchange information in the field of common interest.

Suggested in 1958 by Dr. Tsuyoshi Tamura of Japan, the parks conference works closely with United Nations agencies. Three hundred delegates attended from 70 countries, among them The Congo, Spain, Uruguay, Nigeria, and Mexico.

The fire aboard the 19-foot craft followed an explosion. The boat was sunk at a dock to douse the flames.

BEN BELLA RETURNS TO CHEERS OF PEOPLE

ALGIERS (AP) — Dissident deputy premier Ahmed Ben Bella, flanked by high officers of the National Liberation Army, entered western Algeria today and received acclaim from thousands of shouting Moslems.

Ben Bella then set out on what apparently is intended as a procession of popular triumph toward Algiers—to the discomfort of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda with whom he has been at odds.

Ben Bella first entered his birthplace of Marnia, a town of about 12,000 six miles east of the Moroccan border.

Moslem women, in their best tribal dress, banged tambourines and clucked chickens; thousands of spectators shouted and cheered as the caravan of 30 cars sped under banners proclaiming "Long Live Ben Bella."

Tiny Orbiting Telstar In Triumphant Baptism

(See Page 30)

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Telstar, the communications satellite, orbited in space today on its pioneering mission to bring the world a new voice, ears and eyes.

In triumph, Telstar today sent television pictures spanning the Atlantic to France and England. It relayed a telephone call from Maine to Vice-President Johnson in Washington as loud and clear as the best of local calls.

Then for an encore, the versatile Telstar — only a yard wide — simultaneously transmitted news stories at a 1,000-word-a-minute clip, relayed photographs perfectly, and supplied two-way telephone calls with perfect aplomb from a 3,000-mile height in space.

Remarkably clear TV pictures were received in France, and were to be relayed by tape into French homes today.

French TV officials planned to beam a return program to the United States late tonight or early Thursday French time, which is five hours ahead of EDT.

A Paris dispatch said this would include a view of Paris, and a message from Jacques Marette, French communications minister.

In Britain, faint and fleeting pictures were picked up as Telstar received, amplified and retransmitted the program beamed into space from a powerful horn antenna in the little town of Andover, Me. The first telecast via space opened with a view of the American flag rippling in the breeze.

Telstar's first feat was a prodigious demonstration of things to come in a future worldwide satellite communications system to meet mounting de-

Thieves Get Huge Haul In Art

LONDON (Reuters) — Thieves stole 35 paintings valued at nearly $1,200,000 from an art gallery in London's swank Mayfair district during the night.

It was believed to be Britain's biggest art theft.

The paintings included 10 by Renoir and works by Picasso, Monet, Toulouse-Lautrec and Bonnard.

Police said thieves scaled roofs and forced a fire escape door leading to the O'Hana Art Gallery.

Jacques O'Hana, owner of the gallery that specializes in modern and impressionist works, estimated the value of the stolen paintings at nearly £400,000.

Within hours all air and seaports had been placed on the alert to prevent the thieves from taking the masterpieces out of Britain.

Interpol, the international police organization, also was asked to help.

The insurers offered a reward of £20,000 for the return of the paintings—10 per cent of their insured value.

GOYA STILL MISSING

It was the biggest art theft in England since the theft of a Goya portrait of the Duke of Wellington from the National Gallery last August.

The Goya, valued at £140,000, still is missing.

London has had a wave of art thefts in recent months. A Renoir and two Picassos were among 12 paintings stolen last May. Eleven of the paintings were recovered a week afterward.

The O'Hana Gallery was the scene of a theft four years ago when a Renoir miniature, La Promenade, was removed from its frame and replaced with a colored print of the Madonna and Child.

In the last 12 months the total value of stolen paintings in Europe and the United States has been at least £2,800,000.

The paintings stolen today were part of the gallery's annual summer exhibition.

AFTER TWO YEARS' EFFORT

Channel Swim Made Underwater

DOVER, England (AP) — Fred Baldasare, 38, a Florida film producer, made history of sorts today by completing an English Channel swim from Calais to Sandwich Bay under water.

Bruised and weary, Baldasare trudged ashore on the English side 18 hours and one minute after setting off from France guided by a marker 15 feet beneath the surface.

The marker was towed by a motor boat and Baldasare, in a frogman's suit, breathed from air tanks.

The distance from Calais to England is 22 miles as the crow flies, but Baldasare's off course. It was reckoned he covered about twice that distance.

Baldasare, the first person to swim the channel under water, said:

"I have given up two years of my life to do this and it has cost me $5,000. My life savings are gone."

"Having achieved my ambition, I now want to get back into film producing. I will do documentaries and also hope to direct a drama about underwater channel swimming."

Baldasare carried lead weights to keep him down. A relay of French frogmen changed his air tanks during the swim.

He covered about twice that distance.

Remember when "out of this world" was just an expression?

Some folks take years to build an art collection, others do it over night.

2 MEN HURT AS FLARES EXPLODE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A case of distress flares exploded on a waterfront dock here today injuring two men.

Taken to hospital with severe burns were forklift operator John T. McNeill and foreman Gunnar Murmest.

Police said McNeill was thrown 20 feet by the blast at the Northland Navigation Company wharf.

Fear of a major waterfront fire sent several fire trucks to the scene. The explosion ripped several heavy planks off the dock but no serious fire resulted.

REACH ACCORD

Moslem Chiefs Avert Clash

OUJDA, Morocco (Reuters) — The opposing sides in Algeria's Moslem nationalist leadership have reached agreement on ending their split, menacing the newly independent country, it was reported today.

The Moroccan news agency first announced the agreement between dissident Algerian leader Mohammed Ben Bella and the Algerian provisional government of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda, hammered out at talks in the Moroccan capital of Rabat.

An authoritative provisional government source confirmed the agency's report.

The news damped down fears that Algerian National Liberation Army units loyal to Ben Bella, a provisional government vice-premier, might attempt a coup aimed at installing him in power under a military dictatorship.

It came as Ben Bella arrived in the Moroccan border town of Oujda a few hours before his expected entry into Algeria.

The Moroccan news agency Maghreb Arab Press said the agreement will be submitted for approval to a meeting of Algerian military leaders.

It said the two sides negotiating at Rabat had agreed not to make any statements which could lead to a worsening of the situation.

The agency was quoting sources which it described as close to the two groups. It gave no details of the agreement.

Its story and the confirmation dispelled pessimism resulting from earlier reports that the Rabat reconciliation talks had broken down.

NURSES BACK DOCTORS

REGINA (CP) — Nearly 260 Regina nurses Tuesday voted full support of Saskatchewan's medical care plan.

The registered nurses passed a resolution calling for "wholehearted support" of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, warning of a "complete breakdown" if the medical care plan continues.

The resolution said the nursing education is suffering a serious setback. It urged negotiations between doctors and government be resumed "immediately" to stop the exodus of doctors and nurses from the province.

Good-Natured Representation

REGINA (Special) — Reporters covering the "Keep-Our-Doctors" rally outside the Parliament Buildings here today estimated the crowd at a little more than 5,000 persons as the demonstration entered its final phase.

Pre-rally estimates of the turnout had ranged from 10,000 to 30,000.

"There have been about 800 to 1,000 cars come in from out of town and they are still arriving," said newsman Peter Fowler as the last of 12 speakers finished talking and KOD officials read a lengthy petition calling for a general election on the Medicare Act.

REGINA (CP) — Nearly 4,000 persons assembled outside the Legislative grounds this afternoon to protest against the controversial Medical Care Act as Liberal members of the legislature found themselves locked out of the legislative chamber.

The crowd outside remained orderly prior to a scheduled meeting of the executive of the sponsoring Keep-Our-Doctors Provincial Committee and Premier Woodrow Lloyd.

First report of disturbance came when police moved in to prevent a threatened scrap between two men carrying pro-government placards and K-O-D supporters. The signs were broken up by some spectators while police ordered breaking up of a wooden K-O-D placard.

"This isn't Russia," Mr. Thatcher said, adding that he was beginning to wonder whether the provincial CCF government wasn't starting to take steps that even Soviet Premier Khrushchev wouldn't take.

He doubted whether MLAs had ever been locked out of their desks before in Canadian history.

The legislature ended a regular session last spring.

Mary Batten, Liberal for Humboldt, said she thinks "there will be bloodshed in the province."

In picnic-like fashion, a disciplined, good-natured crowd, many who had streamed into the provincial capital by car, listened attentively as a long list of speakers began to voice protest against the act.

Inside the buildings, Liberal opposition leader Ross Thatcher, leading 11 Liberal MLAs, marched down the corridors with chairs to find all doors to the legislative chamber closed.

"This is one of the most autocratic steps ever taken in Saskatchewan," said Mr. Thatcher.

He said he understood the order for the closing of the chamber had come from the premier who, Mr. Thatcher said, had described the Liberal attempt to sit in the legislature as "a theatrical gesture."

REGINA (CP) — Premier Woodrow Lloyd agreed to meet a delegation from the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee today as crowds began streaming into the legislative grounds for a mass protest rally against the controversial medical care insurance plan.

The meeting was scheduled to be held sometime during the afternoon. Meanwhile, the Saskatchewan cabinet also went into session.

Less than an hour before the start of the rally (at 2 p.m. CST) highways into the provincial capital were clogged with cars coming from many Saskatchewan centres.

On the main Highway 11 from Saskatoon cars were lined up 30 yards apart in a steady stream for more than 16 miles from the city. There was one contingent alone of 165 cars from Prince Albert.

The crowd, expected by Regina Deputy Police Chief James Lyttle to reach a total of 10,000, was quiet and orderly. The Regina police boys' band added a musical note.

1,500 on Hand With 20 Minutes to Go

By 1:40 p.m. CST, the crowd on the grounds had swollen to more than 1,500.

A growing parade of men, women and children, of all ages, including babies pushed in prams, circled the driveway in front of the buildings.

It was a good-natured crowd. They displayed signs proclaiming: "We Object — Yorkton, The Plan Must Satisfy All, 'Suspend Medicare Now'."

Government employees were seen in the crowd. Some wore "Keep-Our-Doctors" buttons.

The front of the building. Snow fences were set up around the flower beds.

At Davidson, 80 miles south of Saskatoon, nine out of 10 cars on southbound highway carried window stickers claiming support for doctors in their opposition to the government plan.

The Saskatchewan Keep-Our-Doctors Committee had originally forecast that a 700-car cavalcade would form for the 167-mile trip to Regina. But the cavalcade failed to form.

It appeared that motorists preferred to travel singly instead of in a group.

Committee members handed out pro-doctor stickers and pennants on the outskirts of Saskatoon but not all motorists accepted the material. It was not known how many cars would arrive in Regina.

The cavalcade today, backed by businessmen and city and town councils throughout the province, it seeks suspension of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act that went into operation July 1, resulting in withdrawal of normal medical service by most of the 700 practising doctors in the province.

The first two cavalcades, numbering 112 and 350 cars respectively, sought by petition to delay the plan until agreement between the government and the doctors could be reached.

This one "demands" suspension of the act, followed by return of the doctors to normal practice. If the government does not suspend the act, the Keep-Our-Doctors Committee seeks dissolution of the legislature and a general election.

Labor groups, which under the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor have supported the government's compulsory medical care plan, are not

Chinese Ring Post But Don't Attack

(Times News Services)
NEW DELHI — Communist Chinese troops encircling an Indian border outpost today held their positions but did not attack, Indian officials said.

At the same time, China sent its second protest note in two days, charging India with border intrusions along the disputed frontier.

The New China News Agency said the note was sent Tuesday. India, it charged, has set up four new military strong points in China's Sinkiang region and another in Tibet as a prelude to "armed invasion."

The Indian government said it was watching the border situation closely.

Informed sources said the Indian garrison still was in radio contact with army headquarters, but since the Chinese encirclement was complete, it would be difficult to supply the outpost by land.

There are no roads in the area of the outpost. Sources said the Chinese appeared to be using pack animals for transport.

Negroes Jailed For Protest

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — Approximately 35 Negroes were arrested today during a demonstration march toward city hall in protest of the imprisonment of southern integration leader Martin Luther King Jr.

As the arrested Negroes neared the jail in back of the city hall, they broke into the strains of their freedom song, "We Shall Overcome."

King and a fellow minister began 45 days of imprisonment—growing out of earlier demonstrations here—Tuesday and immediately went on a 24-hour fast "to purify their spirits."

Police chief Laurie Pritchett, at the head of a patrol, met the Negroes as they started out of an all-Negro neighborhood and asked them to disperse.

When they quietly refused, he ordered them arrested for blocking traffic and parading without a permit—the same charges that sent King to jail for 45 days Tuesday.

Dr. William Anderson, head of the Albany integration movement, claimed to have 24,000 Negroes ready to go to jail in protest against the rigid segregation practices of this south Georgia industrial city of 60,000.

They were the first of more than 30 United Kingdom doctors expected by Saturday.

They are being brought by the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission.

A group of clergyment representing United, Anglican and Roman Catholic churches, which has met with both government and doctors, said Tuesday they failed to bring the two sides together for a settlement.
